Cardinal O'Connell Prays for Lasting American Peace

At last we are home again in our own America, prouder still, if that were possible, of her liberty, of her founders and of her institutions. May God bless our America, her rulers and her people, and keep her ever prosperous and happy in the full possesion of national honor and lasting peace.—Cardinal O'Connell, on his return to Boston from Papal Conclave.

HURL GERMANS BACK

CARDINALS BACK FROM ROME, THANK GOD FOR U. S. PEACE

Cardinal O'Connell, accompanied by Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, returned to Boston today on board the crowded war-refugee liner Canopic from Rome, where the two cardinals had gone to attend the conclave which elected Pope Benedict XV.

The two cardinals held a reception on the deck of the steamer at the pier and both spoke to the welcoming friends. Cardinal Gibbons spoke especially of the destruction of Louvain and Liege and praised the work of American ambassadors and consuls in taking care of their stranded fellow-countrymen.

Cardinal O'Connell gave out a formal statement which was in full as follows:

"We have had a most remarkable voyage. With the exception of a week in Italy, we have been on the ocean since August 20, and during that time the weather has been very favorable for sea travel. We had an unusually large passenger list on our return trip, due to the terrible situation in Europe, and the officers of the boat did everything possible to make all comfortable under the conditions. Many of the passengers availed themselves of the permission to sleep on deck, and it was altogether a good natured party, glad to be facing home from Europe at this time.

"As the world now knows, the conclave resulted in the election of Cardinal della Chiese to the Pontificate, who assumed the name of Benedict XV. Three of the American Cardinals arrived too late to participate in the election, Cardinal Gibbons, Cardinal Begin and myself. The other two American Cardinals, Cardinal Farley of New York, and the South American Cardinal, were able to be present by the merest chance; Cardinal Farley had been detained in Switzerland on account of the war, and was able to reach Rome in time for the conclave. The South American Cardinal was at the time nearing Gibraltar, on his way to Carlsbad and thus managed to arrive in time. The three other American Cardinals arrived late by a few hours and had the conclave been postponed a day as they expected, they would have been in time to take part in the election. The ancient regulation of beginning the conclave on the tenth day after the death of the Pope, was made when Cardinals did not reside at such a great distance from Rome as they do now, and undoubtedly a new regulation will be made in regard to the opening of the conclave, that will enable the American Cardinals to reach Rome in time to participate in the election.

"The choice of Cardinal della Chiesa to fill the highest post of honor and of jurisdiction in the world, has already produced a most favorable impression and manifests the great wisdom and prudence that marked the deliberations of the cardinals in conclave. At this particular time there is great need of a young vigorous pontiff with a deep knowledge of diplomatic relations and with wide practical experience in the affairs of church and State.

VON KLUCK IN PERIL; ALLIES TAKE PERONNE

PARIS, Sept. 24.—An official statement issued here this afternoon announced that the French left wing was making steady progress and that Peronne had been occupied by the allies.

In an attempt to drive off the French troops, who are threatening his line of communication, General von Kluck is making a sharp attack upon the French forces at Peronne.

Peronne is fifteen miles northwest of St. Quentin and more than seventy miles north-northeast of Paris. In its turning movement, therefore, the French left wing has advanced about seventy-five miles since it was driven across the Marne by the swift advance of the German right wing.

The complete official statement follows:

OFFICIAL.

French Coat of Arms.

"1. On our left wing, between the Somme and the Oise, our troops have advanced in the direction of Roye (about twenty-five miles southeast of St. Quentin). A detachment has occupied Peronne and is maintaining itself there despite sharp attacks from the enemy. Between the Oise and the Aisne the enemy continues to maintain important forces solidly intrenched. We have advanced slightly to the northwest of Berry-au-Bac.

"2. On the centre, between the Argonne and Rheims, there is no change. At the east of the Argonne and on the heights of the Meuse the enemy continues his attacks with particular violence. The combat continues with alternative recoil at certain points and advance at others.

Braves Playing Two Games With Cincinnati Reds

By NICK FLATLEY.

The champions of 1914, the Braves—for they're so far ahead now that nothing but the worst kind of an upset can take the flag from them—will for the next few days have a chance to let up a bit and be in perfect trim for the big clash with the winners of the American League race.

This afternoon the Reds are again on the schedule for a pair of battles. That Brave lead is now the impos-

PRESIDENT APPROVES HEARST PEACE MEETING PLANS

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 24.—A letter has been received by President Benj. Ide Wheeler of the University of California from President Woodrow Wilson in Washington, in answer to the peace resolutions adopted unanimously by the audience which thronged Hearst's Greek Theatre on Sunday afternoon, September 13, in which the President heartily approves the purposes of the Hearst peace meetings and offers the reassurance that he is doing everything possible to act in the spirit and the intention of the "moving resolutions." The communication is as follows:

"My Dear President Wheeler:

"I have received a telegram containing the moving resolutions of the meeting assembled at the Greek Theatre on the grounds of the university of September 13th, with regard to the European war, and hope that there will be some opportunity on your part to assure the citizens who sent me this eloquent appeal that I am doing everything that it is possible to act in the spirit and with the intention of their resolutions. Cordially and sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

PEACE SUNDAY OBSERVANCE TO BE WIDESPREAD

Many Boston organizations will hold peace demonstrations on Sunday, October 4, the day appointed by President Wilson as Peace Day.

Mayor Curley will address a large open-air meeting on that day, held under the auspices of the Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association on the grounds adjoining their building, Warren street, Roxbury.

OPEN-AIR MEETING.

Among the speakers are: Rabbi Harry Levi, Assistant Attorney-General Leon R. Eyges, Charles H. Streeter of the Federal Government, Abraham C. Webber, assistant district attorney, and others.

Samuel Magid, president of the association, said: "We hope to make this open-air meeting one of the greatest demonstrations for peace. At this present time there is nothing more important than this public interest for peace.

"We are very glad to join hands with the Hearst newspapers, which have done much good for peace all through the United States."

Nathan Sodeckeon is in charge of this open-air meeting. He is assisted by Dr. Nathaniel Pinkelstein, Carl Gerstein, Alexander E. Rose, and others.

Mayor Curley will also speak at a peace meeting to be held in the synagogue on Chelsea park street, Sunday, October 4. Rabbi Medler will have charge of this meeting.

The Independent Order Brith Abraham with its 118 lodges in this State and 25,000 members will hold peace meetings in the lodge halls on that day. Nathan Bishko, deputy grand master, in referring to the meetings to be held by the lodges, said:

"Every member of our lodge is in hearty accord with the movement to make public the cause of peace as carried on by the AMERICAN. Orders have been sent to our 200,000 members throughout the United States to observe Peace Day."

FOR HEARST PEACE BOARD.

Samuel Kalesky for the Board of Deputies has called a meeting of the Independent Order Brith Abraham at No. 724 Washington street for Thursday evening, September 29, when a resolution will be passed endorsing the Hearst International Peace Commission.

Mr. Kalesky, who is chairman of the order, said: "We are doing all we can to talk peace and to encourage the observance of Peace Day. We are in thorough sympathy with the publicity which newspapers are giving this project."

Take Man in Lowell for Lynn Robbery

LOWELL, Sept. 24.—David Stroyman, alias Arthur Smith, was arrested here today on a warrant issued by the Lynn police charging him with stealing a watch, chain and locket valued at $75 from Samuel Kuber. He is also wanted by the New York police for forgery. He will be taken to Lynn.

Banker Plouff Held in $10,000 For Grand Jury

Joseph A. Plouff of the Lafayette Savings Bank was today held for the Grand Jury in $10,000 after arraignment before Judge Sullivan in the Municipal Court on a charge of obtaining $12,000 money under false pretenses from various Boston banks.

His counsel, Major Thomas L. Walsh and Charles Campbell, issued a statement defending Plouff. They said in part:

"Not one cent o money was used by Plouff to his own gain.

"His troubles are due to the fact that the institution of the new bank was prematurely brought about. The incorporation and management were precipitated in the extreme.

"The bank was doomed to failure from the start, and it was a burden on him to keep it going."

MEDFORD CITY CLERK FORCED OUT OF OFFICE

Mayor Charles S. Taylor of Medford today demanded the resignation of City Clerk Allston Joyce on the ground of irregularities in the accounts of the city clerk's office. The resignation was tendered.

Joyce has been city clerk in Medford since the town became a city, twenty-one years ago. It was stated in Medford today that restitution to the amount of $5,000 has already been made to the city.

The Board of Aldermen have been called in a special meeting Friday to pass upon Mr. Joyce's resignation, and also to determine whether any action shall be taken under the statutes requiring auditing of city books by the State Bureau of Statistics.

Mayor Taylor said today:

"The special meeting was called to act upon the resignation. The resignation was demanded by me, and promptly tendered. I am convinced that there were irregularities in the accounts of the city clerk, not only in his capacity as city clerk, but also in his capacity as clerk of the board of cemetery trustees.

"I am unable to say when the irregularities commenced. My investigation has not proceeded so far. There has been some restitution already made."

Mayor Taylor today demanded the keys to the city clerk's office and desk, opened them, and appointed Assistant City Clerk Ella E. Hinckley to be acting city clerk. Miss Hinckley has been associated with the office since October, 1852.

Joyce was elected city clerk by the first Board of Aldermen in April, 1895. His successor will be elected by the Board of Aldermen.

Boston Boots for British Soldiers

More than 16,000 pairs of rubber boots, made in Greater Boston, were shipped today on board of the Scythian of the Leyland line, which sailed for Liverpool and Manchester. The entire consignment was over 20,000 pairs, but 6,000 pairs were left behind to be sent with an additional number when the Arabic sails next week. The boots will be taken to France for British soldiers.

J. BROSS LLOYD WOULD ANNUL HIS MARRIAGE

That John Bross Lloyd, the Chicago and Harvard "spendthrift millionaire," was secretly married two months ago, and that his romance has already been shattered, became known today when Chicago dispatches told of his filing a plea for annulment of his marriage.

Lloyd, who is defendant in a $150,000 breach of promise suit brought of Miss Mary I. Sullivan, of Needham, was, it now appears, married to Hazel Laura O'Donnell Carlisle, last June. Now he claims the marriage was illegal.

A few hours after he filed his annulment suit Lloyd had the case suppressed "for service" and then disappeared. His whereabouts is a mystery and no information can be secured from his family about the case.

Early in June Lloyd appeared at the Chicago marriage license bureau and secured a permit to wed Miss Carlisle. They disappeared and when they were married is a secret. The girl was a divorcee.

Lloyd, who is a former Harvard football hero, has been the centre of more than one interesting mystery during the past few years. While completing his sophomore year, he was said to have severed family ties for the sake of a woman.

After he had squandered thousands of dollars, his family managed to break the influence of this woman. Shortly afterward Miss Sullivan filed a suit for breach of promise against him.

On the grounds that Lloyd is a citizen of Illinois, Judge Wait considered Miss Sullivan's suit transferred from the Massachusetts Courts.

Steamer Ashore Off Brant Rock

NANTUCKET, Sept. 24.—A report reached here at noon that the steamer Gayhead is ashore about a half-mile outside of Brant Point, but that her position is not dangerous and that she may be floated at high tide. The Gayhead, with passengers and freight aboard, left here this morning for New Bedford, Mass., in a heavy fog.

WIFE IS HELD WITHOUT BAIL FOR DEATH STAB

Mrs. Mary M. Pelrine, who the police say confessed to stabbing her husband, Reuben Pelrine, to death in their home, No. 253 Chelsea street, East Boston, was arraigned today before Judge Barnes in the East Boston District Court charged with murder. She pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for a hearing on October 1.

Miss Mildred O'Brien, twenty, of No. 253 Chelsea street, East Boston, and Miss Annie Smith, a boarder in the Pelrine home, were both held as material witnesses in $100 bail. The police say these young women were in the Pelrine home just before the quarrel between the husband and wife.

Sergeant Daniel J. Sweeney was the complainant. Mrs. Pelrine was not represented by counsel. She listened calmly to the reading of the charge and then pleaded. Judge Barnes instructed Sergeant Sweeney to tell her that she had a right to make application to the Superior Court for counsel.

Mrs. Pelrine is forty-three years old and her husband was forty-eight. According to the police, they quarrelled in the kitchen of their home Tuesday afternoon, and Mrs. Pelrine stabbed her husband under the heart with a cobbler's knife. When arrested Mrs. Pelrine stoutly maintained her innocence, but finally, the police say, broke down and admitted the crime.

Ride Where You Please if You've Paid Your Fare

The conductor, on a car bound down Summer street for Rowe's Wharf at 12:30 o'clock today noticed the tall, dark man standing in the doorway of the vestibule. He asked the man to move. The man refused.

The conductor stopped the car—right at the corner of Washington and Summer street. In a few minutes a 1,000 people jammed the streets and cars extended for blocks in each direction. The conductor called on two policemen.

"I've paid my fare," said the tall, dark man. "I'll ride where I please."

"We can't make him move," said the police. "He's paid his fare. But you get on with your car and clear the track."

So—if you've paid your fare—you can stand in the doorway if you like.

U. S. TROOPS TO QUIT MEXICO DESPITE WAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—There will be no change in the attitude of the United States government toward Mexico as a result of the break between General Carranza and General Villa it was stated at the White House today.

The administration will hold unswervingly to its course and is confident that trouble will be settled in the near future.

The American troops will be withdrawn from Vera Cruz as had been planned and officially there will be no recognition of the Villa revolt. The causes of the conflict between the two men are well understood by President Wilson and he was not surprised by recent developments.

Administration officials, it is said, expect an entire change of policy by Carranza in the near future and that he will yield to the major demands of General Villa. General Villa demands a prompt settlement of the land problem, which has been the basis of all recent revolutions in Mexico. Carranza being a property holder is inclined to "go slow" on land reforms and is showing a stubborn spirit which has alienated many of the Constitutionalists.

Zapata, it is understood, has promised to support the government if it divide the great estates of Mexico among the masses of the Mexican people and afford an equitable distribution of the land. Villa insists in addition that Carranza declare his intentions speedily. If Carranza intends to run for the presidency of the nation he cannot act even unofficially as provisional President, Villa states. The northern general insists that the "first chief" cease his dilatory tactics.

Administration officials profess optimism in the ultimate solution of the trouble and say that they are looking for more eruptions in Mexico before permanent peace is restored.

GERTRUDE HITZ, who plays Viola Winthrop in "The Road to Happiness."

Winner of Beauty Prize on Hub Stage

The girl who was voted in 1911 to be "the prettiest girl in Cleveland" is now playing on a Boston stage. One of her most cherished possessions, aside from the record of her stage successes, is the first prize medal she obtained in a big beauty contest in that Ninth City of the Union. Gertrude Hitz is the worthy possessor of this beauty medal and she lends delightful girlish grace and charm to the role of Viola Winthrop in "The Road to Happiness," William Hodge's quaintly engaging drama of village life, now holding the boards at the Wilbur Theatre.

Miss Hitz was born in Cleveland and was educated at the Convent of Notre Dame Academy there.

"The Trap" Reopens in Majestic Tonight

Arthur Hammerstein's much talked of production of "The Trap" will reopen the Majestic Theatre tonight. The producer announces the offering simply as "a play by Richard Harding Davis and Jules Eckert Goodman." The piece is said to teem with dramatic situations and is declared to be one of the strongest entertainments seen on the American stage in a great many years. The cast is headed by Janet Beecher, who is appearing under Mr. Hammerstein's direction through an arrangement with David Belasco under whom she has starred for five years. Among those who will assist her in the interpretation of "The Trap," the following names will be easily recalled by the Boston theatregoers: Charles Richman, Ralph Delmore, Tully Marshall, George Harcourt, Orrin Johnson, Frank Ames, Elaine Hammerstein and Dorothy Wolfe.

ATTLEBORO HUNT FOR GIRL'S ASSAILANTS

ATTLEBORO, Sept. 24.—The police today worked for a clew to the apparently aimless but brutal attack made upon Delia Brusseau about 8 o'clock last night by two strange men.

The girl left the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brusseau, on Hebron street, to go to her grandfather's house. As she passed a barn, the two men leaped out and seized her, swiftly gagged her with a handkerchief, and dragged her away.

They took her a quarter of a mile, to an isolated spot, and there tied her to a post with a clothes line. She was dragged there bruised, they handled her roughly, tore her garments, and struck her repeatedly. One of the men gave her a blow on the side as a result of which she is now under a doctor's care.

Fire Alarm Men Regular Firemen, High Court Rules

Josiah S. Dean, appointed by the Supreme Court as auditor in the case of George L. Pickard and other members of the Boston Fire alarm branch of the Boston fire department, who petitioned the Supreme Court some time ago to compel the Boston Firemen's Relief Fund to accept them as members of the benefit fund, today in his report states that these men should be accepted as members and receive such benefits as are derived from the association.

"The men of the fire alarm branch have always been considered by the executive departments of the fire department as regular firemen. They have been subject to fines, also to the same discipline that the regular firemen have, and there is no reason why they should not be accepted," said Dean.

in a marked degree. He is still a young man with a keen intelligence and of a physical constitution capable of enduring great fatigue. He has always labored untiringly and scarcely gives himself the slightest relaxation from his work. His career has been marked with splendid and conspicuous success.

"Trained in the College of Ecclesiastical Nobles, he distinguished himself in his first post in the Nunciature of Madrid, where he worked under the eyes of the late Cardinal Rampolla, then papal nuncio to Spain. Later, when Cardinal Rampolla had been created papal secretary of State under Leo XIII, he remembered the tireless auditor at Madrid, and called him to Rome to occupy a most responsible position in that department of the secretariate of State that is mainly concerned with the diplomatic relation of the Holy See. Here the young ecclesiastic spent most of his years, and the practical experience of affairs and the intimate knowledge of statesmen and churchmen he there acquired will now serve him in good stead.

"Seven years ago he was appointed to fill a most important post in Italy as archbishop of the historic diocese of Bologna, and there began at once to show the fruits of a splendid mind and judgment. His position as archbishop of Bologna enabled him to add to his training, the practical experience of executive administration, and his marked success in all the important and delicate posts he has occupied promises a glorious and fruitful pontificate for Pope Benedict XV.

"The present time is a most trying one in which to begin the arduous labors of Pontiff, and Pope Benedict XV, will at the very outset of his Pontificate be called on to face as serious and as difficult a problem as ever fell to the lot of a Sovereign Pontiff, but in his labors he will have the prayers and co-operation of all the bishops, priests and people throughout the world, and from no section of the world will greater support, deeper affection and more lasting loyalty go up to our Holy Father than from the bishop, priests and people of our own beloved diocese of Boston.

"Nearly twenty years ago, when I occupied the post of rector of the American College in Rome, I knew the present Holy Father during those years when he was connected with the Secretaryship of State, and I then saw his ceaseless activity and capacity for hard and important work.

PROUD OF AMERICA

"On my arrival in Rome, just a bare hour or two after the Holy Father had been elected, I went immediately to the Vatican and sought out the new Pontiff to offer him the homage and devotion of myself, the priests and people of the archdiocese of Boston. He was still in the small room that was allotted to him as his dwelling during the conclave surrounded by a number of friends. As soon as my name was announced, the little room was cleared and the Holy Father fairly hurried to the door to embrace me and recalled at once our former and uninterrupted friendship.

"On three separate occasions during my short stay in Rome the Holy Father received me in private conference and I was amazed with the wonderful qualities he displayed. His ready and quick grasp of affairs, his intimate knowledge of men and conditions, his gracious tact and courtly bearing, his manifest love and burning desire for the betterment and happiness of the people, his deep knowledge and simple faith impressed me in a marked degree, and promise a glorious reign for the church and for the people throughout the world.

"Pope Benedict the XV, showed great tact in dispensing with the ancient solemnity attending the coronation. The ceremony took place three days after his election, so as to enable the foreign cardinals to leave for their homes. The coronation took place in the historic Sistene Chapel, it was a memorable and historic occasion. There were cardinals sitting side by side, many belonging to the very cities that at that moment were suffering the dire ravages of the present war, and although each cardinal had his native flag waving confidently and proudly within his bosom, there was an exterior dignity and charity as only the Catholic church can offer, a perfect brotherhood in faith, without surrendering in the least iota the fullest measure of a generous and self-sacrificing patriotism, each toward his native land.

"And now, at last we are home again in our own America, prouder still, if that were possible, of her liberty, of her founders and of her institutions. May God bless our America, her rulers and her people and keep her ever prosperous and happy in the full possession of national honor and lasting peace."

VENERABLE CHURCH PRINCE PRAISES RELIEF WORK OF U. S.

Cardinals Gibbons and O'Connell were welcomed by a number of leading priests and laymen and, on behalf of the port officials by Collector Edmund Billings.

As the Canopic came alongside the great pier, a large crowd was seen upon the dock waiting to receive Cardinals Gibbons and O'Connell. The delegations, headed by Bishop Joseph G. Anderson, included the monsignori of the archdiocese, the cathedral clergy and many diocesan priests, the fourth degree Knights of Columbus, headed by State Deputy Louis Watson, the Cathedral Guild, Commendatores and Knights of St. Gregory, members of the staff of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and a large number of prominent private citizens. The latter included:

Surveyor of the Port Joseph Maynard, Hon. Joseph H. O'Neil, Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, William J. Dooley, Dr. P. F. X. Mahoney, Peter Porter, Dr. John B. Slattery, State Treasurer Frederick W. Mansfield, Commendatore William A. Dunn, K. G., Edward O'Connell, the Cardinal's brother, Hugh Nolan, John D. Bruen, Louis Watson, Commissioner of Public Buildings Richard A. Lynch, Charles F. Logue, Joseph F. O'Connell, James Carney, Frank J. Ferguson.

In addressing the gathering Cardinal O'Connell said:

WELCOME GIBBONS.

"This wonderful old man (laying his hand affectionately on the shoulder of Cardinal Gibbons) with his eighty-one years of loyal service in every duty of fidelity to every obligation, knows that honor among nations as among men is no 'mere scrap of paper. We are glad to welcome Cardinal Gibbons once more to Boston, whose people always hold him in deep affection."

Cardinal Gibbons began to speak amid a warm burst of applause:

"I am truly grateful for this warm Boston welcome, and I assure you of my affection for your great metropolitan city. I have always been received here with cordiality and friendliness welcome, both by the clergy and the laity.

"As your own cardinal-archbishop has said our hearts are heavy because of the terrible consequences of war in Europe and its destruction of life and property.

"A few weeks before the war I traveled through Belgium and admired, as all must admire, its beauty, its industry, its thrift and its prosperity. And it is a sad reflection that in Brussels, in Liege, in Louvain, there is such dreadful ruin and destruction. The country so fair once is now trampled by military men and all signs of peace have disappeared.

"We contrast those awful conditions with what we find in our own beloved country, and how thankful we ought to be.

"Too much praise cannot be paid to our government for its magnificent work in helping to get back to America and to their homes thousands of American citizens who had gone to Europe for a holiday, and who should have suffered much and be unable to return to America were it not for the efforts of the government at Washington in their behalf.

Cardinal Gibbons concluded by giving his blessing to the bareheaded company of clergy and laymen who had listened with close attention to his every word, and as he finished gave him an enthusiastic handclapping.

BLESSINGS OF PEACE.

Cardinal Gibbons said:

"After witnessing the sad scenes of devastation and destruction and the appalling loss of life which is now the tragic lot of a great part of Europe, we have reason to congratulate ourselves that we as Americans ask of thankfulness to Almighty God that our beloved country is enjoying the blessings of peace.

"I am proud," said Cardinal Gibbons, "to return home by way of Boston and in the company of your distinguished Bostonian, His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell."

Cardinal Gibbons and his traveling companions and accompanied by Bishop Corrigan, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, and Monsignor Shahan, rector of the Catholic University at Washington, left Boston for New York on the 10 o'clock express. The cardinal will proceed without delay to Baltimore to attend the closing session of the convention of Federated Catholic Societies, now in progress in the Maryland city.

IMPRESSIVE SCENE.

When all was ready for going ashore a pleasing ceremony took place on the upper, or boat, deck of the Canopic, when the two cardinals stood in the centre of a group of clergy and laymen who had gathered to give them welcome home. Said Cardinal O'Connell:

"Gentlemen, our experiences of the last month and a half, full of anxiety while we were on the water, impressed us with the thought, what a horrible thing, what a crime, war is. The one thing uppermost in our mind is: 'When will it all cease?'"

Also on board with Cardinal O'Connell were Monsignor Splaine, rector of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, and Pio de Luca, director of the Cathedral choir.

Brophy Addresses Firemen at Athol

ATHOL, Sept. 24.—At the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's Association in Mooar Hall today, Walter L. Wedger of Boston spoke on "The Problem of Handling Gasoline," George U. Toole of Boston on "The Best and Most Useful Methods of Providing Adequate Exercise for Permanent Firemen," and Captain William Brophy of Boston on "The Call and the Spirit with Which the Firemen Answer It."

25 'Flat Broke' Among 798 on the Canopic

The White Star liner Canopic arrived today from Naples with 441 saloon and 357 steerage passengers, crowded in so that many slept in temporary staterooms, in the smoking and lounge rooms and even stretched on camp chairs on deck.

They were thankful to get back under any conditions, for fully one-half the passengers were refugee tourists, who were assisted in one way or another by the United States government to get out of Italy. There were twenty-five passengers aboard in that condition tersely described as "flat broke." They would not have been on the boat at all if their passage money had not been guaranteed by the United States.

The very man who assisted so many of the Canopic's passengers to get home and who helped many others was himself abroad. He is Captain Frank T. Hines, U. S. A. He, with Mrs. Hines and Lieutenant C. S. Hoyt were returning from Greece when war came.

Several opera singers were aboard, including Carlo Buonamici of the Boston opera, and family; Carlo Edwards, Ricardo Martin and George Hamlin and family.

Correct Way to Treat Skin Diseases

Both air and water seem to have a bad effect upon skin diseases like Eczema, of which there are many forms. Keeping out the water and air is the first thing to do. By using Cadum, the well-known remedy for skin diseases, air and water are excluded, because Cadum contains petrolatum and white wax, and these form a tight covering over the sore places upon the skin. Cadum also contains oil of cade, which has been successfully used many years by the medical profession in the treatment of Eczema and other skin trouble. If your skin is inflamed, irritated or sore, get a 15c box of Cadum of your druggist and try it. The 25c size box contains nearly four times as much as the 15c size and is cheaper to buy.

GRIER, FAMOUS MINE MANAGER, DIES IN WEST

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 24.—Accompanied by his family the remains of Thomas Johnson Grier who died here Tuesday evening, left Los Angeles last night in a private car over the Salt Lake Railroad for Lead, S. D., where funeral services will be held, probably next Monday. Mr. Grier was for thirty-five years general manager of the famous Homestake mine at Lead and was one of the ablest and most widely known mining men in the United States, probably in the world.

Mr. Grier was born in Peckenham, Canada, in 1849; learned telegraphy as a youth and when he was twenty-two came to Utah where he worked for some years at the sounder and key. In 1877 he went to Lead, S. D., and entered the employ of the Homestake mine in a clerical capacity. He progressed rapidly. He built up in Lead the model mining camp of the world. Mr. Grier came to be recognized in mining circles as one of the great mining managers of the world.

Under the administration of Mr. Grier many innovations for the betterment of employes and their families were established at the Homestake mine. A $250,000 recreation building, equipped with varied modern appliances of recreation was built for the benefit of the Homestake workers and their families. An insurance system was inaugurated, a free hospital and medical service was founded and other betterments for employes were fostered.

Tufts Freshmen Elect Officers

The freshman class of Tufts College has elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Harold C. Jackson of Detroit, Mich; vice-president, Philip B. Lewis of West Somerville; treasurer, Alfred R. Nichols of Dorchester; secretary, Edward B. Norton of North Westchester, Ct., and Marshall Oliver C. Wescott of Malden.

Flee South End Fire in Night Clothes

Occupants of No. 19 Union Park street, South End, were forced to flee to the street in their night clothes early today as a result of a fire which caused a damage of $200. J. B. Bailey, one of the lodgers, discovered the hallways filled with smoke and awakened the other occupants. The cause of the fire is unknown.

JEAN BARNETT, whose brother pursued her East to ask her to leave stage.

Jean Barnett, who owns a ranch in Nevada, and 5,000 head of cattle, is coming to the Colonial Theatre next week in the chorus of Ziegfeld's "Follies." Miss Barnett says she has had enough of Nevada blizzards, mountains and pastures—she wants life.

Two weeks ago she applied to Flo Ziegfeld, when that connoisseur of feminine pulchritude was getting ready for the road. He grabbed her at once and gave her a small speaking part. Her brother, Tom Barnett, pursued her East and implored her to go home, but Miss Barnett said pertly, "No more cattle for me. I never want to see a calf again—off the stage."

Jenkinson Tufts Editor.

Egbert W. A. Jenkinson, 16 of Brookline, has been elected managing editor of the Tufts College Weekly to succeed Herbert A. French, 16, of Waltham, was forced to resign because of illness.

PUSH FIGHT FOR NATIONAL PROHIBITION

The Anti-Saloon League continues today their great See-This-Things-Through rallies throughout the State, and forty-two meetings are scheduled. The rallies are a part of a nation-wide campaign whose object is the eventual passage of the Sheppard-Hobson amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Dr. O. B. Chase of Georgia, one of the leaders of the Southern movement for prohibition, is one of the speakers at tonight's rallies. T. Alex Cairns of New Jersey is another. Mr. Cairns will first speak at Norfolk. He is one of the best known temperance speakers in the country, an author and a social worker.

Dr. Howard H. Russell is perhaps the strongest speaker in the group who are conducting these rallies.

Probe $6,000 Blaze in Mulligan Barn

The State police started an investigation today of the fire which early today destroyed a large barn on Salem street, Natick, owned by ex-Senator Henry C. Mulligan. The loss was $6,000. The barn was a two-story wooden structure used as a furniture storehouse. Chief Delgnan believes that the fire was set.

'Dry' Rallies in 42 Towns and Cities Tonight

Rallies in the Anti-Saloon League Campaign will be held tonight in the following forty-two cities and towns: Ashburnham, Ballardvale, Belmont, Blandford, Bradford, Chicopee, Cummington, Dighton, East Weymouth, Edgartown, Florence, Georgetown, Holbrook, Lancaster, Lee, Longmeadow, Mansfield, Maynard, Millers Falls, Needham, North Amherst, North Billerica, North Brookfield, North Scituate, Oxford, Rowley, Sherborn, Shirley, Spencer, Ware, Wareham, Wellfleet, West Boylston, West Medway, Weston, West Stockbridge, East Bridgewater, Hollston, Peabody, Hinsdale, Stow, Three Rivers.

A New, Harmless Way to Banish Hairy Growths

(Beauty Topics)

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face. With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the not wanted hairs; apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. This method is unfailing, harmless and quick in results, but care should be employed to get genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

DARING RAID OF ENGLISH AVIATORS IN GERMANY THRILLS THE ALLIES

RUSSIANS ADVANCING IN EASTERN PRUSSIA

"3. On our right wing there is no notable change in the region of Nancy and in the Vosges.

"Some detachments of the enemy have attempted again to penetrate French territory, pushing forward light covering forces, but their offensive has been quickly arrested."

Referring to the situation in the eastern theatre of war, the statement says:

"In Galacia the Russians have captured Jaroslaw, completely invested Przemysl and continued their offensive against Cracow."

Franklin P. Merrick, the AMERICAN'S Paris correspondent, describes today's fighting in the following dispatch:

PARIS, Sept. 24.—The bloodiest fighting of the great battle of the Aisne, which is now in its twelfth day, is going on along the German right wing where the British and French are struggling furiously to surround and cut off the army of General von Kluck.

The French have swung round a gigantic circle and are delivering a series of fierce attacks upon the soldiers of General von Boelm, who are defending the Mons route of German communications along a battle front through Cambria, Bouvain, Denain and St. Amand. According to the military authorities this is the first direct assault which the allies have been able to deliver against the important German line of communication. Desperate fighting is going on especially around Arlonx and Courcheleltes, where the Thirteenth French army corps under General Alix is attempting to smash the invaders' front.

RUSSIANS CLAIM BIG VICTORY.

Petrograd today claims that the Germans are evacuating East Prussia after a sweeping defeat at the hands of General Rennenkampf, but an official Berlin dispatch announces that the German offensive is continuing. The conflicting dispatches follow:

PARIS, Sept. 24.—A Petrograd dispatch to the Matin states that the Russians have defeated the Germans whom General Rennenkampf lured to the Russian frontier and that the Germans are evacuating East Prussia to reinforce her Thorn-Kalisz front.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Sept. 24.—Official announcement was made today that all attacks of the allied French and British troops in France had been repulsed and that the German offensive in Russia continued, the fortress of Kovno, 135 miles east of Koenigsberg, having been bombarded.

The statement says: "The Emperor and the Crown Prince are in good health. The Emperor is in touch with the entire situation."

COLLETTE HERO OF ENGLAND.

As part compensation for the sinking of the three British cruisers in Tuesday's submarine raid comes the report that the Russian cruiser Bayan has sunk a German cruiser and two torpedo boats in the North Sea.

Another favorable development for the allies is the warning carried to Germany in the 500-mile flight of British aviators from Antwerp to Dusseldorf, dropping bombs on the hangars of the German Zeppelins.

That there is more work ahead for the allies' aerial forces, however, is evidenced by the following:

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 24.—German Zeppelins, evidently on scouting duty, have been sighted above Jutland, the peninsula that forms the Denmark mainland.

The British air raid into Germany has stirred the enthusiasm of all Great Britain, as the following dispatch attests:

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Lieutenant C. H. Collette is the hero of England today. His action in successfully leading a squad of five British aviators across the German frontier and dropping bombs at Dusseldorf has lifted a little of the gloom caused by the sinking of England's three big cruisers. Lieutenant Collette, who originally was attached to the Royal Marine Artillery, ranks as one of the most daring and skilled aviators in England, although he took up flying only a little over a year ago. He was one of the first men in England to make the thousand-foot spirals in a heavy biplane.

FURIOUS FIGHTING IN BELGIUM.

Today's dispatches emphasize the activity of the Belgians in their renewed operations against the Germans. So great has this menace to the Kaiser's troops become that the destruction of Antwerp, the Belgian base of operations, is evidently now the German purpose. Dispatches bearing on the Belgian theatre of warfare follow:

ANTWERP, Sept. 24.—German and Belgian troops are fighting at Puers. Part of King Albert's army has retired to the ramparts of Antwerp. The German force at Puers is reported to have two of the great siege guns that smashed the forts at Liege and Namur.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—A Reuter dispatch from Ghent says that a small force of Belgians, supported by an armored train, defeated 2,500 Germans, who lost many in killed, wounded and prisoners.

OSTEND, Sept. 24.—General von Luttwitz, German military Governor of Brussels, is reported to have been shot by one of his own men and to be in the hospital there in a serious condition. Another version current in Brussels is that the General was shot in a battle at Vilvorde.

GERMAN SUBMARINE SAFE.

London gives out more information as to the losses in the North Sea submarine disaster in the following dispatch from Herbert Temple to the AMERICAN:

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Nearly half of the officers aboard the cruisers Aboukir, Cressy and Hogue, when they were sunk by a German submarine, lost their lives. This was revealed today when the government press bureau issued a summary of the casualties among the naval officers. It showed that fifty-seven had been killed and sixty rescued.

Twenty-one officers of the Aboukir were killed and seventeen saved. The Cressy lost twenty-five officers, only four being rescued. Of the forty officers of the Hogue, eleven were killed and twenty-nine rescued. The total estimate of the dead is about 1,100, but the exact number of saved and lost will not be learned until the official reports have all been received at the Admiralty.

Albert Dougherty, chief gunner of the Cressy, who was rescued and taken to Chatham, declares he saw five submarines and that he shattered the conning tower of one of them.

The submarine which sunk the British cruisers traveled 400 miles and is safe after its remarkable exploit, according to Berlin advices, which say:

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—(Via Amsterdam)—Official announcement was made today that the submarine U-9, which, unaided, sunk three British cruisers in the North Sea, had returned to its base undamaged. In going to and returning from the scene of action, the statement states, the submarine traveled 400 miles.

As the base from which the U-9 set out is supposed to be Wilhelmshaven, the destruction of the British cruisers probably occurred near the British coast, north of Harwich.

EMDEN BOMBARDS OIL TANKS.

That the German navy is still a peril in Eastern waters as well as the confines of the North Sea is evidenced by this cable:

SIMLA, Sept. 24.—The German cruiser Emden entered the harbor of Madras last night and bombarded the great oil tanks there. Two were set on fire. The British guns replied to the attack and the cruiser was driven from the harbor. Two men and a boy were killed by German shells. Several shots struck the telegraph office.

This dispatch comes from Simla, because Simla is the Summer capital of the Indian government, 1,200 miles north of Madras. Madras is on the east coast of India, on the Bay of Bengal, just north of the Island of Ceylon. The Emden is the fast German cruiser that has menaced British commerce for weeks and which the British eastern naval force has been unable to run down.

The Goeben and Breslau are again active in behalf of Germany.

ATHENS, Sept. 24.—Reports from Constantinople say that the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau made a raid upon Russian shipping in the Black Sea on Monday and Tuesday, returning to the Sea of Marmora yesterday. These same reports say that the Goeben and Breslau are still flying the German flag, despite the recent announcement by Turkey that she had bought the two warships.

The following Petrograd dispatch says the Russians are still advancing against the armies of Austria and Germany in the region of the Carpathians.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 24.—Rallying their forces behind the Wislok River, the Austrians are giving battle to the advancing Russian troops along a curved line extending from the foothills of the Carpathians east of Jasolo to Depic on the Wislok River, according to reports from the front received at the War Office today. The Austrian troops have been reinforced by large forces of Germans and the combined armies are offering a desperate resistance, but the Russians are advancing steadily, the general staff states.

Terrific rainstorms are flooding the rivers of western Galicia and the Russian army faces an enormous task in getting to Cracow, which is recognized to be their present objective, according to a dispatch from Breslau.

Vienna officially announces that the Austrians are now on the offensive in Galicia, that "heavy fighting is going on along a line extending from the Vistula River to Przemysl, and every attempt of the Russians to break through this line has been repulsed."

War Personalities and Sidelights

M. ARON, a fashion expert now in Boston, says: "If the war lasts ten years, Paris will still be the centre of fashion."

GENERAL BOTHA'S decision to take the field personally in command against the forces of Germany has aroused much enthusiasm in South Africa.

MRS. LILLIAN ROSECRANS of Roxbury, who has been missing in Germany, is alive and well, Secretary Bryan has wired Mayor Curley.

THE REV. DOMINICK CASSETTA and the Rev. Gustave Banchies of New York and the Rev. Raymond Carra of New Orleans are detained in Italy, liable to military service.

FRANK PAGE, the ambassador's son, who has been helping to care for American refugees, has sailed from London.

LORD KITCHENER discovered a prominent politician's governess had been in communication with Berlin ever since she had been in London and who has been arrested as a spy.

MAJOR C. DUPONT of the French artillery was approached by a German captain who asked his surrender. Major Dupont sprang to a gun beside which his gunners lay dead and trained it upon the enemy, but before he could fire a bullet stretched him across the gun mortally wounded.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It if Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist. As a last resort they go to some cheap store and often times get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more injury than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use:

5 grains Optona (1 tablet).
2 ounces Water.

Use 3 or 4 times a day to bathe the eyes. This preparation and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean, sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation; weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and often times cured by its use. Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks' use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which would injure the most sensitive eyes of an infant or the aged. The Riker-Jaynes stores or any druggist can fill this prescription promptly. Try it and know for once what real eye comfort is.

A Fine Shampoo

You will never know the complete satisfaction of a perfect shampoo until you use Birt's Head Wash. It makes a rich, abundant lather, and cleans the scalp of dust, dirt and disease germs. It opens up the pores leading to the roots, stimulates growth, prevents disagreeable odors, and gives a beautiful lustre to the hair.

Birt's Head Wash is made of a neutral creamy soap, combined with white of eggs, glycerin, cocoanut oil and salicylic acid. These things are all recognized as being of peculiar benefit in scalp and hair troubles. For automobilists Birt's Head Wash is invaluable. A shampoo with it after a ride is both a delight and a duty.

It is an ideal preparation for grown people and children. Sold in hygienic tubes at all drug and department stores, 25c.

MANAGER OF FRED YELLE POSTS $200 TO BIND TITLE MATCH WITH BALDWIN

MOORE POSTS $200 FORFEIT FOR TITLE GO

By JACK CONWAY.

MR. MATHEW BALDWIN, Charlestown's noble box fighter, will not have much peace of mind until he meets Fred Yelle, the rugged Taunton lightweight, in a little game of ticticuffs. Mathew is parading around with the New England lightweight championship, but Yelle claims that he would not retain his title if he would meet him in a battle within the hemp ropes.

Eddie Moore, who manages Yelle's business affairs, believes that his protege is the best 135-pound boxer in New England. Moore does not waste his time in challenging boxers in behalf of Yelle when he does not intend to go through with his end of the agreement. He called at this office today and posted a certified check for $200 with the writer to bind a match with Baldwin.

Moore is willing to post $200 more provided his original forfeit is covered by Eddie Murphy, manager of Baldwin. He would also like to have at least $200 of this amount, and all of it if possible, go as a side bet. Yes, gentle reader, friend Moore is not the piker kind of boxing manager who talks merely for the pleasure he derives from hearing his own voice.

THE Pawtucket man has directed Yelle's ring affairs for the past five years. He has piloted the twenty-year-old Taunton boy in all of his battles and considers him unbeatable. We will let Moore tell his own story. Here it is:

"Fred Yelle is the classiest lightweight in New England today. He has fought eighty-two battles and has lost but one decision. Yelle's lone reverse was received two years ago in a tussle with Ray Wood in New Bedford. The contest was a twelve-round affair. Fred broke one of his hands in the third round of the encounter, but yet the New Bedford newspapers asserted that he had the best of the going.

"The Taunton youth has conquered almost every prominent New England lightweight. Included in the list of boys whom he has beaten are: Matty Baldwin, Steve Kennedy, Terry Brooks, Jack Read, Al Delmont, "Kid" McDonald, Tommy Rawson, Freddy O'Brien, Jimmy Greenwood, Tommy Moore and Joe Phillips.

"YELLE completely outclassed Baldwin at Augusta, Me. I believe that he would have stopped the Charlestown veteran if there was not a intermission after the first six rounds of the encounter. A rushing, tearful fighter like Baldwin has not a chance of winning when opposed by a young, strong, ambitious boy like Yelle. On my part, I will work hard with each hand and who is as fast as lightning on his feet.

"Yelle is willing to give Baldwin a chance to win back his lost laurels. Fred also thinks right now that the New England lightweight championship would look all to the merry in his opinion, but Baldwin and Yelle cannot very well avoid the issue. Eddie Murphy, his manager, cannot declare that Yelle has not a chance to stop Baldwin himself was numbered among his victims. He must either cover my forfeit or admit that he is afraid to match his protege with Yelle.

YELLE won nine straight fights in Philadelphia last Winter. He recently returned to that city where he engaged in four contests winning three of them by knockouts. Jack Greenstock, who has a considerable boxing in this country, was the only boy whom Fred failed to stop. Their whirl went the limit of ten rounds, but in the final frame Yelle scored three knockdowns and would have sent over a fourth had not the skirmish had been a longer affair. If this hustling Massachusetts boy who has proved that he is as good as the goods and that his heart is in the right place, is not entitled to a battle with the so-called champion of New England champion, I would like to ask who is?"

AFTER getting this out of his system, Eddie informed us that he considers the Brain the greatest little ball club in captivity. Moore is a third degree boxing lover but he has plenty of time in which to take in the ball games. He is a great admirer of Stallings' getup. Climbers, as my friend Nick Flatley calls the Braves. We have yet to find a person who does not admire a real fighter, a person who can encounter and overcome difficulties.

MOORE'S oldest boy, who answers to the name of Sammy, is quite a ball player. He won honors with his high school team and played with the Pawtucket club of the Colonial League for several months last year. He is a centre-fielder and hopes to make good in the big show some day.

Ritchie Wants Nolan to Again Handle Affairs

Billy Nolan, while in Chicago the other day, imparted the information that Willie Ritchie is desirous of again getting his old job of handling business. Ritchie personally did not approach Nolan, but Packey McFarland, who is spending the honeymoon in the West, sought Nolan and opened talks for Ritchie. Ritchie needs a manager now and that they had better patch up their difficulties. Nolan is satisfied that Ritchie and McFarland, but the pilot of champions says he cannot afford to hook up with Willie because of his other connections.

It is known that if Georges Carpentier comes out of the war uninjured he will be on his way to this country soon after and will sign with Nolan. The latter also has negotiations on with one of America's best middleweights and may soon announce signing him.

COACHES WORK TUFTS' MEN HARD FOR FIRST GAME

The coaches of the Tufts College football squad continue to work their charges untiringly in spite of the excessively hot weather. A long signal practice is in order for today as well as a workout with the forward pass. The eleven is fast getting into condition for the initial contest of the season against New Hampshire State on Saturday at Medford. The team which will go up against the lads from the White Mountain State will be composed largely of last season's veterans.

The veteran backfield composed of "Hi" Parks at quarterback, Vollie Wescott and Hadley at halfbacks and Captain George Angell at fullback are working in perfect harmony. Angell is hurling the forward pass better and with greater accuracy than ever before and the open game that will be the main offence of Tufts for the coming season. Wescott, who last year such a sensational game ...at year, is in wonderful condition and is waiting eagerly for the opening whistle.

Sanborn, a freshman from Newburyport, has been shifted to right end displacing Mason the former Cambridge Latin star. Sanborn's work has been the feature of his last few days practice and it would not be at all surprising if he should start the game. Hall and Gardner, saturday "Dutch" Schlotterbeck and "Spike" Throndike, veterans of the eleven of 1912, will probably be seen at the guard position when the season opens. Coach Whelan has discovered a hurling find in Turner, the old Winthrop high player. Turner played a few games last season for the Brown and Blue at fullback but he was unknown as a punter until yesterday.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRIGON.

Monday evening last the Maxwell Motor Company entertained some 600 to 700 residents of Hingham and vicinity at a free moving picture exhibition, entitled "From Molten Steel to Automobile." This feature of the Maxwell advertising campaign was exceptionally well received and great interest was centred on the reproduction of the manufacture of Maxwell cars. Some of the scenes were shown in color and were particularly effective.

This exhibition, in charge of Messrs. H. E. Hudson and A. J. Hitchrist of the Maxwell force, is scheduled to appear in a number of towns close to Boston.

J. H. MacAlman, New England distributor of the Stearns-Knight car, starts on his annual tour through the White Mountains tomorrow. Mr. MacAlman will visit the Franconia, Profile, Pinkham, Grafton and Crawford notches before his return.

* * *

Route cards showing the route from Boston to the Brockton Fair and return are being distributed by the B. F. Goodrich Company. These cards have been compiled and is authentic.

* * *

Bill Eaton, the famous golfer of Winchester, a man who knows every inch of the Winchester Country Club course, has forsaken the greens for the time being in order that he might enjoy a trip through the mountains this autumnal season. Bill Eaton was in Danville (N. H.) on Tuesday and in writing to a friend at home says that the golf links there is a fine course and he thinks a good one might be laid out on the side of one of the mountains. Outside of that he is having a good time.

* * *

C. W. Foster of Gabriel horn fame, the man who a few years ago entertained the Glidden Tourists with his musical Gabriel, is visiting Boston for a few days as the guest of Fred Cowell, of the Cowell & Hall-Rome Co., distributors of the Overland car.

* * *

Roy Harris, the head of the cold tire department of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, is enjoying one of his periodical trips to Boston. Mr. Harris considers Boston as one of the best towns on his schedule, not only because of its business possibilities, but likewise because of its pleasant associations.

College Football

PRINCETON, Sept. 24.—The radical Tiger game underwent a test in a scrimmage of the regular varsity yesterday, and the result was the first scrimmage of the season and managed to go through forward passes, long runs and touchdown in short order. His superiority in handling the ball was apparent in the way he gathered in the ball and ran. Still, in his great game he worked almost wholly with the old Princeton attack in the guise of the same perplexing formations with which and law doing the passing scored a second touchdown.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 24.—Promptly played a smashing good game at fullback for the Yale scrubs, his team was unable to make headway against the big varsity. Because of the varsity trend over for the only touchdown of the afternoon. Ingersoll could have made another but was called back. Lessee had one good opportunity for a goal from the field from the thirty-five yard line, but just missed it.

* * *

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—Castalo Al Journee of Penn was moved to the second team at his own request in the scrimmage. He wants every trial to have a chance at the centre post. Borie had a trial on the varsity and Carter will get both chances. A new candidate for the position is Keene, who, by Dickson, the end coach, thinks is fast enough for the semi-big team ses.

* * *

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Fordham's goal was crossed for the first time this season when the scrubs traveled forty yards after a fumble on the twelve-yard marker. The varsity defense was fine, but Captain Dressen, Perrel's understudy, could not stop the rushes of the Georgetown game at Washington on Saturday. The team and rooters will leave at 10 p. m. tomorrow.

* * *

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 24.—The main squad of candidates for the Navy eleven reported for a week in advance of the opening of the academic year. The veteran Dad Lyon is now on hand as Captain Dressen, Perry, Herman and Phillips, of the strong wing attitudes who played in a number of games there by Kennedy, Wade, Wilder, Mitchell, Alexander, Babs, Hodgett and Collins.

* * *

WEST POINT, Sept. 24.—The Army's goaders sent the varsity and second team into a long scrimmage. Benedict kicked some beautiful placements, and Captain Dale Oliphant dropped in a pretty field goal from the 35-yard mark. Two and all scoring.

* * *

ANN ARBOR, Sept. 24.—Yost dispensed with scrimmage entirely yesterday, but had the long signal practice, running forward pass formations with Hollidt, Hambleton and Sellers at the game. Two touchdowns are looked for here.

* * *

NEW BRUNSWICK, Sept. 24.—Emphasis was placed on the Rutgers' defence for it was in that department that the team proved weak against Princeton last Fall.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—A man in close touch with Coach Siegfried Sheldon said that the local collegians would not start their first game against Fordham Saturday, as the team can be assured for the Navy game in Annapolis a week later.

* * *

The Tufts football squad has been split into two elevens. Yesterday only light signal practice was indulged in, but as the weather cools off scrimmage will be in order.

* * *

AMHERST, Sept. 24.—Amherst College opens its football season this afternoon when the Lord Jeffery eleven clashes with Coach Riley's husky squad will be greatly increased this afternoon when the squad will be played Saturday and the squad will be given hard work today and tomorrow.

Kid Lewis Seeking Match With Welsh

NEW YORK, Sept. 24. — "Kid" Lewis, the English featherweight champion, is here after a globe-girdling tour. He was in Australia, where he defeated all the lightweights.

Lewis has deserted the feathers and is now a full-fledged lightweight. He is anxious to get a match with Welsh, ten rounds or longer. The "Kid" has a forfeit of 1,000 pounds posted in England for a match with Welsh for both the English and world's lightweight title.

Readville Clubs to Battle for Title

The Readville A. A. and Readville A. C. will play for the championship of Ward 26 Saturday at the Stony Brook Park grounds. The two clubs played two games, each winning one, and the game Saturday will prove which is the better nine. The batteries for the A. A. will be O'Neill and either Kane or Sherman, and for the A. C. Stevens and Hutchins will do the work.

Return Worcester Game.

WORCESTER, Sept. 24.—The baseball team of Worcester City Council, which defeated the Cambridge City Council team at Stony Brook Park on Saturday, completed arrangements for a return game in Cambridge on Saturday, September 26.

WORLD RECORD PACERS TODAY IN MATCH RACE

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 24.—With the track as fast as it ever has been, the stage at Comstock Park is set for the great race today between Directum I. and William.

Reports from the managers are to the effect that both horses are in the best of shape.

Dr. J. C. McCoy, who is managing Directum I., said that to the best of his knowledge Ray Snedeker will drive the stallion in the big race.

It's up to James Butler, owner of the horse, and if he has engaged Murphy, that peerless driver will have the mount.

W. W. Marvin, who has trained and driven William in all his races, will be behind that wonderful four-year-old.

Betting here has been at about even and a lot of money has been placed. Directum I. is favorite in Detroit and the East, but it is thought that when the Western contingent reaches here they will make it even.

While the original contract for the races calls for best three in five heats, they may be changed. If the weather is cold they may go two in three, and both side is anxious for a new record, which hardly would be possible in the longer race.

Dr. S. E. Dodge will be the starter. D. J. Campau of Detroit will be presiding judge and Fred T. Moran of Detroit chief timer.

School Notes

Coach "Skip" Sherlock of the High School of Commerce football team gave his boys a workout at the L street bathe yesterday afternoon. After taking a dip in the ocean the boys ran through some signal practice. The game scheduled for Saturday with the Dorchester High team on Dorchester High has been postponed and may be played on Thursday.

* * *

The Dorchester High team will be given a hard scrimmage this afternoon with the second team at Dorchester High Park field, on Saturday, and Coach Arthur Ross wants his boys in the best shape.

Football candidates at Arlington High reported yesterday for the first time.

Twenty boys answered the call and Coach Harry Hanson put the boys through a hard practice. Captain Caterino, Kennedy, Sullivan, Dan, Bergonzi, Ryan, Hurley, Ross and Painted were the veterans to report.

Salem High has the hardest football schedule this season, and the work of Coach McDevitt's team this year will be watched with interest. The schedule follows:

September 26, open; October 3, Manchester High at Salem; October 10, Haverhill High at Salem; October 17, Cambridge High and Latin at Salem; October 24, Boston English High at Salem; November 7, St. John's Prep at Salem; November 14, Newton High at Salem; November 21, football carnival at Salem, November 26, Beverly High at Beverly.

In spite of the hot weather of the past few days, the Boston Latin squad got in some valuable work and the boys are in the best of shape for the opening game with Groton on Saturday.

* * *

Marlboro will be well represented in athletics at the Huntington School this season. Dalrymple, Angier, Cleary and Jefferson have enrolled at the school.

* * *

The game scheduled between Bridge Technical and Chelsea for Saturday has been postponed till Monday afternoon.

* * *

The High School of Commerce team will play Manchester, N. H., High School team on Thanksgiving Day and it is probably that the teams of these schools will clash in an annual contest.

* * *

Manager Freeman of the Lawrence High School football team has arranged a hard schedule for his team as follows:

Sept. 26—Concord, N. H., at Concord.
Sept. 30—Cambridge Latin at Lawrence.
Oct. 3—Nashua, N. H., at Nashua.
Oct. 10—Medford at Medford.
Oct. 12—Manchester, N. H., at Manchester.
Oct. 17—Cambridge Latin at Boston.
Oct. 24—Chelsea High at Malden.
Nov. 7—Methuen at Lawrence.
Nov. 28—Lowell at Lowell.

It is expected that a game will be arranged between Everett High and Gloucester High to-day. Coach Wallace of the Everett High school and Coach Ryan of the Gloucester High school cancelled the game scheduled for Saturday and arranged a game for today. Both schools will play High School of Commerce, Salem High and English High, but was unsuccessful.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. G. MITCHELL

HERZOG threw the last man out in the double-header and then fell over backwards and lay stretched out on the turf as though dead.

Herzog is manager of the Cincinnati Reds and his playing dead was simply his method of signifying to all whom it might concern his intense surprise that his team had won a game of ball.

For nineteen straight games the Reds were forced to accept the small end of the diamond battles they have fought. The victory in the second game of the double-header was the first the Reds have tasted in nearly three weeks.

OUR old right-fielder, Dock Miller, who went on a strike with Hooper in mid-season when they were both members of the Boston Nationals several years ago (it was when William Hepburn Russell owned the club), is the man who beat the Braves. With two out and two on in the ninth round he batted the first ball pitched like a rifle shot past first base and rested on second before they got the ball back. Neihoff followed with another two-bagger and three runs came in, winning the game.

When Doc played in Boston he was a left-field hitter, although a left-handed batter. But this time he cut the ball past first base.

Get your tickets for the world's series.

KING LEAR pitched a great game of ball for the Reds. He was formerly a Boston star.

He has been with the Reds all season, but Herzog never gave him a chance to work regularly. In fact, he was forced to do the finishing act.

Up to yesterday he had taken part in fifteen games, but was not credited with a win or charged with the loss of a game.

Recently he started in a game and when someone on his side poked out a three-bagger Herzog, in trying to play things safe, put in a pinch hitter for Lear. The result was that the man who relieved him in the box was pummelled all over the field.

Get your tickets for the world's series.

IF Doc Miller had filed out or grounded out or struck out, the side would have been retired without a run and the chances are that the umpires would have called the game on account of darkness at the end of the ninth inning.

In that case there would have been a double-header tomorrow as well as today.

Perhaps it is just as well that the spectators got action on that second game. Our boys have work enough ahead of them without an extra double-header being sprung on them.

GEORGE DAVIS pitched a swell game up to the ninth. In the first inning Daniels, the first man up, scratched a single that Evers stopped, but got to first too late. That was the only safe one the Reds made off George until the seventh when Herzog lined a single to centre.

In the ninth Lear drew a pass, Daniels popped to Schmidt and Herzog made his second clean hit. Doubles by Miller and Niehoff then served up the game.

THE Braves have sixteen games to play; the Giants fifteen. Our boys lead the league by six full games. Only a miracle can beat them out of the flag.

MESSRS. Eason and Quigley, umpires, are back with us again. The crowd gave them a round, but as far as umpiring went they did a good day's work with very few mistakes. Quigley took a lot from the Cincinnati players.

This umpire now wears an Adam's apple protector. It will be recalled that he was knocked cold by a foul tip a short time ago at one of the Fenway Park games.

BILL PHELAN of the Cincinnati Times Star, who always travels with the Reds, is in town. At one stage of Game No. 1, with the score 1 to 0 in favor of Cincinnati, yesterday, he was not a model fan. Many the Reds lost in a row.

"This makes nineteen," replied Bill.

GROH, who was banished from the game in the fourth inning for too much back talk, stands at the plate like old man Anson. But there the resemblance ceases. Anson never went through the buck dance indulged in by Groh while the ball is coming up to the plate. The old man took only one step forward and then —Good Night!

OLD-TIME friends of the Boston Nationals—men who haven't attended a game of ball for years—are now regulars since the Braves secured the lead. George Billings, Warren Hill, Major Frank Briggs (who used to be a stockholder in the old Boston Nationals) and George Appleton are among the former patrons noticed these days at Fenway Park.

IT may be remarked in passing that Hank Gowdy's whip is deadly these days. He throws 'em like a rifle shot.

Also, while we are about it, we might as well call attention to the fact that Gowdy's batted ball gets under 'em in grand style. This boy is a swell outfielder.

ing matter of six full games. The Giants can win only one, true, but there's mighty little likelihood that they will.

WHAT GIANTS MUST DO.

If the Braves only break even in the sixteen games left on the schedule, the Mudcrawlers will have to win fourteen and lose but one of the fifteen they still have ahead.

In case this entirely unlikely course of events should transpire, the final rating of the two teams would be:

	W.	L.
Giants	90	64
Braves	89	64

The Giants, as is evident would none out by half a game.

There are two mighty good reasons, however, which make any such reasoning almost ridiculous.

In the first place, the Braves are certain to get better than an even break.

In the second, the Giants have about thrown up the sponge. They showed that yesterday by the half-hearted manner in which they tried to stall off the Cardinals in the second of the day's route.

When Tesreau will pitched himself to defeat in that first game, the bottom of things fell out, as you might say—and the Giants robbed the Braves of any chance of beating them (the Giants) out in the thrilling fight for the second position.

Ozark Jeff's lurid heave recalls another somewhat historic New York wild pitch, which Jack Chesbro produced for the Yankees and gave the Red Sox the American League pennant back in 1903.

Talking of "days," it's about time seems Boston fans got together and started collecting for a "Ruhe Marquard Day." The temperamental Giant wearer of the buskin, who has been worked regularly, piled up the creditable record of twelve successive defeats. These, as much as anything, let the Braves creep up and out.

There's nothing in the world too good for the Ruhe. He's having things handed to him along the line and surely Boston, the greatest baseball city in the world, should not be behindhand. Richard almost deserves a cut into the world's series coin.

BIG BATTLE DAY NEAR.

Two weeks from today, the battle for the championship of the more or less famous universe will start. The fight of the Braves to get where they couldn't be pulled back, and the great effort the Red Sox have been making in the American League, have taken the attention of the fans somewhat away from the fast approaching end of things.

There are but five more National League baseball days left for Boston. After a single game with the Reds tomorrow, the Cubs come for a double header Saturday and one game each on Monday and Tuesday.

The closing appearance thereafter will be against the Mackmen or the Red Sox, the latter we hope, on Friday, October 9.

If it should happen that the two Boston teams were to meet, it would be well for the management to hire and fence in Franklin Field. There would hardly be enough room there to accommodate the throngs that such an inter-city battle would attract.

Dispute Over Killing of Race Horse at Fair

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Brownie, a brown gelding owned by W. J. Benson of this city, was killed at the Mineola Fair.

The accident happened on the far turn and there is a diversity of opinion as to the cause. Onlookers said that the horse burst a blood vessel and fell, but E Shoemaker, who was driving Flagel and was directly behind Brownie, said that Post Jr's Jack Billon too near and hooked Brownie's wheel, causing him to fall and break his neck.

WHAT MAY HAPPEN TODAY.

If the Braves win two and the Giants lose, the Braves will lead the league by seven and a half games.

If the Braves break even and the Giants lose, the Braves will lead by six and a half games.

If the Braves lose two and the Giants lose, the Braves will lead by five and a half games.

If the Braves win one and the Giants win, the Braves will lead by six games and a half.

If the Braves break even and the Giants win, the Braves will lead by five and a half games.

If the Braves lose two and the Giants win, the Braves will lead by five games and a half.

DELANEY CALLS JOE MANDOT THE TY COBB OF BOXING RING

By ED W. SMITH.

THE general idea of a ring fighter looking like a bank clerk was first made popular in this country by Jim Corbett, this simile being used frequently before and after the famous California boxer's mighty struggle with John L. Sullivan in New Orleans.

Since the Corbett regime we have had numerous and mighty good boxers who have carried out the idea and, indeed, in this day of boxing few of them really look the part. An occasional cauliflower ear will denote the battler here and there, but in the main the modern boxer is a clean-cut young fellow in appearance and much on the order of the original "bank clerk of the ring."

AND now comes our old friend Martin Delaney of Chicago, prince of athletic trainers, with the statement that he has seen few fighters in his long career as a handler who so completely deceived in every respect as does Joe Mandot, Southern lightweight champion. It appears that Joe wandered over to the Chicago Athletic Association, where Delaney is host of friends, the other afternoon. His manager, Tommy Walsh, suggested to Joe that he permit Mr. Delaney to look him over, and Martin expressed pleasure at the opportunity.

THE examination was a thorough one, including all the blood tests, etc., and at the finish Mr. Delaney expressed the opinion that he had seen few athletes in his time who so completely answered all questions as the young French boy from New Orleans. "Mandot, I found, is in absolutely perfect condition in an organic way, without a flaw that I could discover. As far as his muscular condition is concerned I was amazed to discover that, although he looks more like a full young man who never rejoiced in any ruggedness at all, he is one of the most perfectly developed boys in the business.

"THAT perfect condition of the skin and the regularity of his muscle formation tell the story. It is seldom my privilege to find such a pliant and flexible set of muscles. He is the sort of athlete who makes his muscles respond instantly to the workings of his mind, something in which Frank Gotch excelled. In other words, he is not only a hard hitter, but has his muscular system under such control that the muscles instantly follow the workings of his mind.

"MANDOT is what I would call the Ty Cobb of the boxing ring. He is extremely nervous, just like the famous Georgia ball player, but not built in such a way that nervousness never will affect his athletic prowess. It is, on the contrary, a big advantage and valuable asset to him. One thing that startled me was to find that he has an athletic heart, big and strong, with a slow pulse that indicates tremendous staying qualities. He should be a wonderful worker over a long journey, as well as a good man for maintaining a high degree of speed over a shorter distance. I should say that he is the ideal boxer despite the fact that his appearance indicates no ruggedness at all."

THE Southern champion is much on the order of Charley White, the Chicago lightweight star. They look anything but athletes and are just brimming over with deceptiveness. This trait was a big asset for White when he beat Willie Ritchie, who took one look at White and decided instantly that he was nothing but a frail misfit. Before the fight round was over he discovered his great mistake.

MACK ADMITS SOX IN FIGHT TO THE FINISH

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 24.—After a day of rest the Red Sox, open a four-game series against the Browns this afternoon after which they will play two games in Chicago and then start for home where they will end the present season.

The Boston boys are confident of beating out the Athletics and after their rather easy clean up in Detroit many of the fans here are out to see what they can do against the locals.

The fight will probably be decided in the present series as the Sox must win all their games while the Athletics must also tighten up a bit to hold off the Carrigans.

The Mackmen open in Chicago against the White Sox today and Connie Mack does not intend to do any loafing until the pennant is clinched. In an interview given out in the Windy City today the Quaker leader gave out the following:

"What do you think of the Red Sox?" was asked.

"They are all right," was Connie's reply.

"Are you or your men worrying over the way your lead has been cut down?"

"I guess not. Worry will not win ball games."

"The Red Sox have been playing good ball."

"Yes."

"Your team is in good trim right now, isn't it?"

"Yes, we are strong in every department."

"You are five and a half games ahead of the Red Sox."

"Yes."

"Of course you expect to win out?"

"We expect to be in at the finish."

"Baseball is uncertain."

"Yes, I always figure my opponent has a chance. I know the Red Sox feel the same way about it. They are going to make a play right up to the last game. We will do the same."

Hussane and Dalkus in Mat Go Tonight

Youssuf Hussane, the Bulkarian, and Dalkus, the youthful giant, will meet tonight in a finish match, best two out of three falls, at the Grand Opera House Both men announce themselves in the best of shape for the battle.

Although Dalkus was beaten by Pat Connolly, he gave the Irish champion a tough run and made him extend himself. Dalkus feels that he will do better against Hussane tonight and that his greater weight and reach will prove a handicap to the Bulgar.

Dalkus has been training in Boston for a week and is in much better shape than when he faced Connolly. Celone Burns will be on hand and ready to make a match with either of the men, regardless of the outcome.

HARVARD SHY OF GOOD SUBS FOR BIG TEAM

Harvard's varsity eleven is nowadays playing with all the zest and vim that has been shown in late years in the game with Yale, although lacking much of the finesse that a season of playing together gives a team.

Team A, or the regular eleven, which faces Bates Saturday, is traveling at mid-season form, although the temperature of 90 degrees under which they have scrimmaged this week is not conducive to husbanding strength.

Still one has Trainer Pooch Donovan's word for it that many of his charges are growing fat on the warm weather diet. The Satick coach is apt to have his hands full later keeping some of his men on edge, but Donovan has always been an adept at bringing the boys down to the important games in plenty good enough condition to handle anything an opponent has to offer and besides get in a few extra licks themselves.

REGULARS QUICK TO SCORE.

Yesterday's scrimmage was but a repetition of the day before, three touchdowns being scored by the regulars in ten minutes. Eddie Mahan, against the scrubs, took the ball on the first play from his own 25-yard line for a wild scamper of 55 yards and a touchdown. His interference smashed off a couple of would-be tacklers, while he allowed off another before an open field was presented him for his long flight.

The varsity again had the ball on its 25-yard line. Brickley unraveled his way through centre, and Mahan to Hardwick via the forward pass annexed another 20. Mahan zigzagged his way around right end for 15. Two more plays followed, and then Brickley to Hardwick for 15 yards gave the varsity another successful forward pass.

ONE ROOKIE IN LINEUP.

Harvard's lineup as it will face Bates, barring injuries or the college office, will be: Left end, Coolidge; l. t., Trumbull; l. g., Cowen; c., Soucy; r. g., Pennock; r. t., Morgan; r. e., Hardwick, q., Logan; l. h. b., Brickley; r. h. b., Mahan; f. b., Brudlee.

There is but one rookie in the pot-pourri, Dave Morgan. The New York lad has all the earmarks of a comer, vows Coach Rex Hitchcock, and he will get his baptism of fire in Saturday's opening fray.

The coaches now are busy at work hunting up capable substitute material. The loss of Dick Starte, whose folks object to his playing, deprives the varsity of an A. No. 1 end.

Kilmartin's and Caner's ailments are to keep them out of action, too, and another good pair is thus sidetracked.

The situation at tackle and quarterback remains about the same with the substitutes lacking the class of the men now on the job. Homer Sweetser, should he have no trouble with his bad shoulder, will probably help in solving one of the tackle difficulties.

Fred Withington, a 178-pounder and brother of Paul and Lo Withington, is another tackle possibility.

LOGAN COACHES QUARTERS.

The quarterbacks have had no coach of their own so far, but Mal Logan has given a great deal of his time to observing the playing of his rivals rather than fitting himself for action.

Logan knows quite a bit of football himself, and Coach Wigglesworth's absence may not be quite the hindrance to the conditioning of the quarterbacks as it was expected to be. Dummy Watson is Logan's understudy, with Windsor third string man.

The first injury of the season was recorded yesterday, when Wing Rollins failed to show up. Rollins bruised his leg in Tuesday's scrimmage, and on Trainer Donovan's advice took a day off.

The varsity are looking forward to the Braves winning the world series.

White Pair Proves Undoing of Ouimet in Greenwich Play

GREENWICH, Ct., Sept. 24. — Another defeat for Francis Ouimet, National golf champion, was the feature of the final rounds of play in the invitation golf tournament at the Greenwich Country Club.

In the semi-final for the beaten eight of the leading division Ouimet gave a splendid exhibition. He won from R. H. White of Oakland, L. I., by six and four, but when he met Gardiner W. White of Flushing, L. I., he was never better than even at any stage and was beaten by three and two.

White was in great form, barring the missing of a very short putt at the twelfth green. The clinching shot of the match was his sinking of a twenty-five-foot putt at the fifth-teenth for a half in 3, which made him dormie.

The next hole was halved in fives and the match ended right there. Ouimet got good direction from the tee during the round, but was weak on the greens.

—War has greatly handicapped many diamond dealers—due to the discontinuance of importations.

—Our position is a most fortunate one.

—As is well known, Jason Weiler & Son do an immense National mail order business—and our large importations are always made far in advance of the Fall season—in order to prepare for this mail order selling.

Their Married Life

Warren Decides to Take Helen to Carrie's and Mr. Atkinson's Escort Is Declined

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

"I DON'T think I want to go, dear."

"There you are again, the trouble with you is that you hate to get out of a rut, you want to go on living in precisely the same way, year in and year out."

"But, Warren, that isn't true; you know how glad I would be at the chance of going anywhere if it weren't just at this time."

"What has the time to do with it just now? This is as good a time as any, in fact it's just exactly the right time to go away for a little change."

"Of course, I'd have to take Winifredy and you know how noisy the children are at Carrie's."

"They are not any noisier than any healthy children of their age. Winifred isn't so delicate she can't stand a little noise."

Helen was silent. Every time the question of visiting Carrie arose there was the same amount of arguing to go through, and "it was very tiring. She hated that Carrie would not invite her out; she wondered vaguely why it was necessary to keep up appearances between them just because they were Warren's relatives.

Carrie had never liked her and the farce of pretending to care about her welfare and that of Winifred was all too lightly veneered not to be perceived by Helen, who was very sensitive and felt any little slight more quickly than a less sensitively organized person might happen to.

Warren had lighted a cigar and now turned to Helen again.

"I think we're fortunate to have Carrie so conveniently situated. You said yourself that Winifred would be better if she had a little breath of pure air just now while she is recovering."

"Yes, but dear, not at Carrie's. Winifred has always been afraid of the boys, they are so rough with her."

WARREN USES THE MOLLYCODDLE PLEA

"That's right, bring her up to be a mollycoddle. I tell you that all children need that kind of thing; girls as well as boys; it makes good strong nerves and good nerves make for good muscles."

Helen saw that it would be useless to refuse to go, or to argue any further. Warren was in one of his particularly perverse moods and would talk all evening if Helen would keep it up.

"Very well," she said finally, with a little touch of firmness that made Warren look up in surprise.

"Well go, but I must need some things and Winifred must have some clothes. I have bought her little since she came back from mother's, and her little dresses are just holding out and no more. She must have a nice coat as well as some other things."

Warren stirred impatiently in his chair.

"Depend upon a woman to need something new, no matter where she goes or how long she stays. I suppose if you were going up for more than a week you would have to take several trunks."

"Exactly," laughed Helen, meeting his sarcasm with a lightly veiled amount of it in her own manner. "If you want us to go away, you surely don't want us to leave without enough clothes to wear."

"Now don't go to work and spend a foolish amount of money on Winifred's clothes," he said, ignoring Helen's remark and changing his tactics.

Sometimes of late Helen had used a manner which he did not understand, although generally she was the same yielding woman that she had always been since he had married her and his treatment of her had undergone no radical change.

"Do you remember the coat we bought for Winifred once," she said musingly. "I think you paid nearly forty dollars, if I am not mistaken, and you told me that five was all that was necessary when we started out."

"I'm sorry, but I won't be able to go up with you," Warren said finally, "but, of course, I'll put you on the train. You'd better leave Saturday morning. I'll run up some time in the afternoon."

"Why can't we all go up in the afternoon?" said Helen. "It's only a matter of a few hours, and I'd much rather go up with you?"

"Well, of course, if you'd rather wait till afternoon there's no reason why you shouldn't, although it is only a matter of an hour's ride out there; it isn't as if you needed me to go with you?"

It was on the tip of Helen's tongue to say that it might be more pleasant aside from any matter of mere necessity, but she choked the words back. If Warren did not feel that way about it, there was no need of publishing her feelings on the subject.

The bell rang at that moment and they both listened. Nora did not answer it immediately and Warren growled out:

"What's the matter with Nora? Seems to me she is getting too free and easy lately."

"Nora is putting Winifred to bed," said Helen, speaking softly. "I'll answer it. I don't see who it could be at this hour, it's nearly nine o'clock."

Helen trailed her soft house gown into the hall and a little later was opening the door. Mr. J. Woods Atkinson stood without.

"Why how do you do," she said, stepping back for him to enter. "This is a surprise, will you go right on into the front? I guess you know the way."

Warren rose as they entered the living room together and shook hands with the stranger. There was a slight antagonism between them even though the manner of both was entirely cordial.

"I know this is a poor time to call," said Jim, "but Louise said something about your going up to Mr. Curtis' sister on Saturday, and I thought if Mr. Curtis were detained in town that perhaps I could be made useful."

He said this with such a flourish of good humor that Helen could not help laughing.

WARREN SUFFERS A CHANGE OF HEART

"Why, I don't know," she said turning to Warren perplexedly, "we were just talking about it as you came in. But I don't need anyone for just that little distance. Mr. Curtis will put me on the train even if he decides not to go up with me."

Warren had not said anything. Now he knocked the ashes off his cigar and looked up.

"To tell the truth, Atkinson, I had just made up my mind to have Helen wait over until afternoon, anyway. It will be more pleasant for me, and I must say I am selfish enough to want it."

"But Warren," protested Helen, "you said you would rather have me go up in the morning and as long as Mr. Atkinson has been so kind, he can take charge of Winifred for me without your bothering to come to the station!"

"Of course that's as you wish," said Warren stiffly, "if you would rather not wait why go up in the morning by all means!"

"But I'd much rather wait, dear, if you want me to. I was only thinking of your interests. Then I guess we won't need you, after all," turning to Mr. Atkinson; "but I certainly do appreciate it. Wasn't it kind of him, Warren?"

And then, as Mr. Atkinson got up to go, Helen and Warren both walked with him to the door.

"I suppose Louise sent him up," remarked Helen as the door had closed changed. "I'm so glad you've decided to have me with you, Warren. What made you change your mind?"

"A matter of a few hours can't make much difference anyway," he answered. "Say, I wonder why a chap like Atkinson happens to have so much room (find room to gallivanting around the country like he does. Must have a play man's job, all right. What do you say?"

(Another incident in this interesting series will appear soon.)

Hard to Believe

She was a nice girl, with a liking for the rugged old salts in blue jerseys and big beards who hawked haddocks round the houses of Eatonville-by-the-Sea.

Many a talk did she have with them, and many stories did she hear about wild nights at sea, in lonely fishing smacks; of great seas that came up in the nets and gnashed their teeth.

And tales of war, too! For some of these old salts had seen service in foreign parts.

Old Tom Ready was a great favorite of hers. He had a quiet way of telling stories that appealed to her. The ring of truth was in everything he said.

"Yes," he was saying, "poor old 'Oratio Nelson! Just before he died of 'ardin' in the Bay of Biscay 'e give me this 'ere very telescope. Give it me with 'is own 'ands 'e did; and a good 'un it is, too, mind!"

"Nelson? Why, Tom, he's been dead for more than a hundred years!"

"Ar 'e reely, missie?" said old Tom, in gentle surprise. "Deary me, dear-eary me! 'Ow the time do fly, to be sure!"

The Price of Beauty

Self-Sacrifice the Main Factor in Retaining Loveliness, Says Pauline Frederick

Pauline Frederick, Who, as a Beautiful Woman, Is Qualified to Talk on Beauty

By MAUDE MILLER

"WELL, I haven't any deep laid beauty schemes," laughed beautiful Miss Pauline Frederick when I asked her what she thought about this all absorbing topic.

"To tell the truth, though, I do believe in self-denial. As far as physical beauty is concerned one simply must sacrifice oneself. For instance, I never eat what I really want to eat, but frequently when I have been hungriest dine on rice and milk.

"This simple diet is excellent for the entire system and is invaluable for a clear, beautiful skin. Then, too, I am a slave to my hair. To keep it beautiful it is shampooed twice a week, and when I am not doing anything important I keep it rolled softly on curlers. This helps me to do it up loosely and picturesquely as though it were just tossed up carelessly and gives the effect I want, but it is a care, as everything else about one's personal beauty is.

"For the outside care of the complexion I advocate scrubbing twice a day with a little brush and plenty of castile soap. I have heard people say that the skin should never be touched with soap, but I have never been able to do without it. Of course, it is all a matter of taste, but personally I don't see how any one can keep the skin of the face clean without a liberal but judicious use of pure soap.

"Of course, a cold cream is necessary sometimes. I have all my cold cream made at home after a simple recipe.

"This spirit of self-sacrifice must be kept up in a uniform manner concerning all things. A woman may be born beautiful and there is much talk these days about natural beauty unadorned, but no woman who has beauty can afford to sit back and do nothing to keep it. And, furthermore, every woman, no matter how beautiful, is never satisfied, but is continually thinking of some way in which she may improve some part of her anatomy.

"Even though the blessing of beautiful hair is a gift of the gods, self-sacrifice is necessary to keep it as it should be. To have wonderful eyes means extra sleep at night and a careful nurturing of the eyebrows and eyelashes; to have a beautiful skin means careful eating and constant effort to keep beautiful. Isn't it all so?"

And I, thinking of the words of the play, "Eyes like the smoldering crater of a volcano, skin like the petals of a gardenia," looked at Miss Frederick, and was indeed prone to agree with anything she said.

Almost Too Late.

"Georgie, dear, what did papa say when he hit his finger with the hammer?"

"I can't tell you, mamma—it was so naughty."

"Tell me quick—I've just hit mine."

Mere Matter of Form

"I thought I'd drop in and see you, doctor, and see if you can't put me in shape."

"You don't want a doctor, madam; you want a corsetiere."

THEN the major became aware of a young woman who was going in the wrong direction. Her cheeks were flushed from her rapid walk, her lips were parted, showing firm, white teeth, and her black eyes were regarding him in a blaze of satire or amusement; an emotion, whatever it was, that thoroughly centred his attention.

"Mademoiselle, I am very sorry, but unless you live this way," he said very politely, "you may not go any farther. Until we have other orders or they attack every one is supposed to remain in his house or his place of business."

"This is my place of business!" Marta answered, for she was already opposite a small, disused chapel which was her schoolroom, where a half dozen of the faithful children were gathered around the masculine importance of Jacky Werther, one of the older boys.

"Then you are Miss Galland!" said the major, enlightened. His smile had an appreciation of the irony of her occupation at that moment.

"Your children are very loyal. They would not tell me where they lived, so we had to let them stay their own way."

"Those who have homes," she said, identifying each one of the faithful with a glance, "have so many brothers and sisters that they will hardly be missed from the flock. Others have no homes—at least not much of a one"—here her temper rose again—"taxes being so high in order that you may organize murder and the destruction of property."

"Now really, Miss Galland," he began solicitously, "I have been assigned to move the civil population in case of attack. Your children ought—"

"After school! You have your duty this morning and I have mine!" Marta interrupted pleasantly, and turned toward the chapel.

A LOYAL BOY

"They are putting sharpshooters in the church tower to get the aeroplanes, and there are lots of the little guns that fire bullets so fast you can't count 'em—little spring wagons with dynamite to blow things up—and——" Jackey Werther ran on in a series of vocal explosions as Marta opened the door to let the children go in.

"Yet you come!" said Marta with a hand caressingly on his shoulder.

"It looks pretty bad for peace, but we came," answered Jacky, round-eyed, in loyalty. We'd come right through bullets 'cause we said we would if we wasn't sick, and we wasn't sick."

"My seven disciples—seven!" exclaimed Marta as she counted them. "And you need not sit on the regular seats, but around me on the platform. It will be more intimate."

"That's grand!" came in chorus. They did not bother about chairs, but seated themselves on the floor around Marta's skirts.

The church clock boomed out its deliberate strokes through ten, the hour set for the lesson, and all counted them—one—two—three. Marta at that moment felt a dismal little effort theirs was, and yet she was very happy, trembilingly happy in her distraction and excitement, that they had not waited for her at the door of the chapel in vain.

THEN PEACE CAME

She announced that there would be no talk this morning; they would only say their oath. Repeating in concert the pledge to the boys and girls of other lands, the childish voices peculiarly sweet and harmonious in contrast to the raucous and uneven sounds of forebading from the street, they came in due course to the words of the concession that the oath made to militancy:

"If an enemy tries to take my land——"

"Children—I—" Marta interrupted with a sense of wonder and shock. They paused and looked at her questioningly. "I had almost forgotten that part!" she breathed confusedly. "That's the part that makes all we're doing against the Grays right!" put in Jacky Werther promptly.

"As I wrote it for you! I shall appeal to his sense of justice and reason with him——"

Jaws dropped and eyes bulged, for above the sounds of the street rose from the distance the unmistakable crackling of rifle fire which, as they listened, spread and increased in volume.

"Go on—on to the end of the oath! It will take only a moment," said Marta resolutely. "It isn't much, but it's the best we can do!"

CHAPTER IX.

The Baptism of Fire.

ALL the landscape in front of Frascase's company seemed to have been deserted; no moving figures were anywhere in sight; no sign of the enemy's infantry.

Faintly the town clock was heard striking the hour. From eight to nine and nine to ten Frascase's men waited; waited until the machina was ready and Westerling could throw in the clutch; waited until the troops were in place for the first move before he hurled his battalions forward. They did not know how the captain at their back received his orders; they only heard the note of the whistle, with a command familiar to a trained instinct on the edge of anticipation. It released a spring in their nerve-centres. They responded as the wheels respond when the throttle is opened. Jumping to their feet they broke into a run, bodies bent, heads down, like the peppered silhouettes that faced Westerling's desk. What they had done repeatedly in drills and manoeuvres they were now doing in war, mechanically as marionettes.

"Come on! The bullet is not made that can get me! Come on!" cried the giant Eugene Aronson.

Nearly all felt the exhilaration of movement in company. Then came the sound that generations had drilled for without hearing; the sound that summons the imagination of man in the thought of how he will feel and act when he hears it; the sound that is everywhere like the song snatches of bees driven whizzing through the air.

"That's it! We're under fire! We're under fire!" flashed a spoken lightning recognition of the sound through every brain.

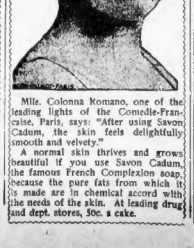
FEAR OF REMOVING SUPERFLUOUS HAIR GROUNDLESS

Thousands of women now regularly remove any trace of disfiguring superfluous hair growths from their faces and bodies. It is totally unnecessary nowadays to have such disfigurements. While medical science knows of no chemical agent which will eradicate hair permanently without serious injury, it is an established scientific fact that El-Rado will remove hair for a very long time, and then in perfectly harmless, simple and thorough. When the hair finally does reappear, it is finer instead of coarser, and can be instantly removed again for a still longer period than at first. A few drops of El-Rado, a simple application, and in a moment the hair vanishes—is dissolved, the skin is left smooth, velvety, and in no whiter than before.

El-Rado is now practically accepted as an indispensable toilet necessity, by fashionable women the world over. You can buy an El-Rado outfit, ready to use, in either form from any druggist, or ordering direct from the Virginia Mfg. Co., New York. Valuable information sent on request.—ADVERTISEMENT.



Mlle. Colonna Romano, one of the leading lights of the Comedie-Francaise, Paris, says: "After using Savon Cadum, the skin feels delightfully smooth and velvety."

A normal skin thrives and grows beautiful if you use Savon Cadum, the famous French Complexion soap, because the pure fats from which it is made are in chemical accord with the needs of the skin. At leading drug and dept. stores, 50c. a cake.

You don't have to help Fels-Naptha Soap get rid of dirt; IT helps YOU by dissolving the dirt in everything it touches. It is easy to use. Think of doing a big wash with cool or lukewarm water, no boiling, no hard rubbing, and having the clothes clean and white, hung on the line before noon.

In housecleaning it does the same thing—saves your time and strength. Cleans woodwork, takes stains out of carpets, freshens up mattings, polishes brass. It brightens silverware and makes china and glass shine. Dissolves the grease on pots and pans. Does all this in cool or lukewarm water.

FELS & CO., PHILADELPHIA

SECT. M'ADOO WILL EXPOSE BANK HOARDERS

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

George F. Baker, one of the world's greatest bankers, returned from war-stricken Europe full of confidence for his own country. "No one need fear for America and her future. It is all right and good times are ahead," he said. That is the opinion of all captains of finance and industry. The hundred-million-dollar gold pool is expected to put foreign exchange on a normal basis, which would tend to the lowering of money rates in this country. Lower rates would give trade more chance to expand. In some quarters a better showing is expected for this month than was reported for August, when the country's leading roads showed an estimated decrease of 2.15 per cent. For July all the roads in the country showed a decrease of 2.67. A better showing for August was looked for, as the grain movement was unusually large last month.

HOARDING BY BANKS.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo says bank reports being received by the comptroller of the currency indicate an extraordinary hoarding of money by many national banks in various sections. The reserves of the banks, he says, show what they are doing and whether they are using their full resources for the relief and accommodation of business. He threatens to withdraw government deposits from banks which charge excessive interest and refuse reasonable accommodations. Such banks will not be able to get any more emergency currency. Furthermore he says:

"I intend to begin issuing daily lists of the banks which are hoarding money by maintaining excessive reserves, in order that the country may know how they are performing their public duties."

BANK OF ENGLAND STATEMENT.

Today's Bank of England statement is an improvement over the one of a week ago, the proportion of reserve to liabilities being 25.33 per cent., compared with 21.18 last week. A year ago the percentage was 58.51. The minimum discount rate remains 5 per cent. During the week the bank has gained $12,500,000 in gold, which is the most in its history. About $10,000,000 has already been transferred from New York to Ottawa, where it is held for Bank of England account. Owing to the formation of the $100,000,000 gold pool to liquidate this country's foreign debts, the bank is sure of still larger inflow next week. This should improve the international situation materially.

MORE WHEAT GOING OUT.

The cross wheat reported the more gold must return to this country when the balance of trade shifts, if it is not kept abroad to liquidate holdings of American stocks, when exchange rates reopen. Large shipments continue on a very large scale. It is reported that exportation sales in the Pacific Northwest for a week total 10,000,000 bushels. Shipments of wheat and flour from New York for that period are estimated at 1,000,000 bushels.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Copper is selling at 13 cents a pound, and is said to some business is being done at that figure. England is taking some electrolytic and there is more immediate demand.

According to the Iron Age conditions in the steel trade have not improved, although there is some foreign inquiry for finished products.

RUSH OF ORDERS IN 'BUY BALE OF COTTON' MOVE

The "Buy a Bale of Cotton" movement continued strong in Boston today. The movement was organized by the Atlanta Georgian and earnestly advocated by the other Hearst newspapers. Orders received today include the following:

Arthur H. Sheehi, 82 North street, Randolph, Mass., one bale.....$50.00
Homer Alden Specialty Co., 19 Maple avenue, North Attleboro, Mass., one bale.....$50.00
Benjamin W. Rodman, No. 1107 Washington street, Boston, one bale.....$50.00
Gibbs, Morse & Williamson, No. 183 Main street, Brockton, one bale.....$50.00

NEW YORK MERCHANTS MEET TO BOOM "BUY A BALE OF COTTON"

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—The great Merchants' Association cotton meeting is the economic event of importance scheduled in New York for today.

The Merchants' Association is a powerful and representative organization. It is young, vigorous and progressive, and it is a source of credit of its public spirit and patriotism that it has so promptly taken hold of this movement.

The AMERICAN hopes that business men of all classes and sections will respond to the call. Such action will not be able to get any more emergency currency. Furthermore he says:

"I intend to begin issuing daily lists of the banks which are hoarding money by maintaining excessive reserves, in order that the country may know how they are performing their public duties."

BANK OF ENGLAND STATEMENT.

Today's Bank of England statement is an improvement over the one of a week ago, the proportion of reserve to liabilities being 25.33 per cent., compared with 21.18 last week. A year ago the percentage was 58.51. The minimum discount rate remains 5 per cent. During the week the bank has gained $12,500,000 in gold, which is the most in its history. About $10,000,000 has already been transferred from New York to Ottawa, where it is held for Bank of England account. Owing to the formation of the $100,000,000 gold pool to liquidate this country's foreign debts, the bank is sure of still larger inflow next week. This should improve the international situation materially.

MORE WHEAT GOING OUT.

The cross wheat reported the more gold must return to this country when the balance of trade shifts, if it is not kept abroad to liquidate holdings of American stocks, when exchange rates reopen. Large shipments continue on a very large scale. It is reported that exportation sales in the Pacific Northwest for a week total 10,000,000 bushels. Shipments of wheat and flour from New York for that period are estimated at 1,000,000 bushels.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Whipple Warning in New Haven Suit

Sherman L. Whipple, who is prosecuting the "restitution" cases against New Haven directors in an effort to recover several millions of dollars for the road, today served notice on all the present directors that they should take court action to prevent the estates of J. P. Morgan and other deceased directors being put beyond their reach.

"BUY A BALE OF COTTON"

At the Boston AMERICAN office, No. 2 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass., you can Buy a Bale of Cotton under this

Application

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN,
"Buy-a-Bale of Cotton" Committee, No. 77 Alabama Street, Atlanta, Ga.:

Enclosed please find check amounting to $——, for which you are authorized to buy for me, or our account, ——— bales of cotton at the rate of ten cents per pound at point of shipment—bale and middling.

If the cotton exceeds 500 pounds per bale, I, or we, agree to pay for the excess at the rate of ten cents per pound; if the cotton weighs less than 500 pounds per bale you are to refund me, or us, the difference at the rate of ten cents per pound.

I, or we, agree to hold this cotton for a period of one year, or until the market price exceeds ten cents per pound.

NEW BEDFORD WINS A. F. OF L. 1915 MEETING

President Edward S. Alden, Holyoke, and Secretary-Treasurer Martin T. Joyce, Boston, of the Massachusetts State Branch American Federation of Labor, are unanimously re-elected, and New Bedford is to be the 1915 State convention city.

Announcement of the result of yesterday's election of officers and balloting for next convention city were important items of today's session of the present convention in Musicians' Building on St. Botolph street.

Out of eleven candidates for the vice-presidential offices John J. Kearney, Boston; George H. Miller, Worcester, and Joseph J. Hunt, Boston, were elected. Miss Mary E. Wrenn, Springfield, and James Holland, Fall River, were elected.

John F. Tobin, mayor of Boston was chosen delegate to the 1915 national convention at Philadelphia.

The closest contest was for the State legislative committee. Henry Sterling, Boston; John Macdougall, Haverhill, and Fred J. Kneeland, Boston, won.

Sour Grapes' Says Mulready of Golden

Edwin Mulready of Rockland, of the State Board of Labor and Industry, today declared that the resignation of John Golden from the latter body was "a case of sour grapes." "For twenty-two years I worked at the bench as a shoemaker and had to give up on account of my health," he said. "I know the needs of the workingman. Mr. Golden knows why he resigned. So do others. They ought to tell the real reason. It was a case of sour grapes on his part."

Mrs. S. A. Mitton of Brookline Buried

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah A. G. Mitton, widow of Edward J. Mitton, who was for many years vice-president of the Jordan Marsh Company, were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at her late home, No. 1440 Beacon street, Brookline. Interment followed in the Cambridge cemetery. The Rev. Charles Daniel Tillany Addison, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church, officiated. The choir of Jordan Marsh assisted by the Adelphi male quartet, out of respect to the memory of Mrs. Mitton, the store of Jordan Marsh was closed all day today.

Wise Men Do Not Try to Teach Old Dogs New Tricks

If the Stockholders of the New Haven Wish to Win Back Public Confidence in Their Road, They Will Rid Their Board at the Coming Election of Every Director Who Had Any Share, Even the Smallest, in Its Looting.

The day is approaching when the stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will meet to elect a new board of directors.

The character of the men they select to manage their property for the ensuing year will largely determine the public attitude toward the railroad. By the character of the new board of directors will the intentions of the railroad be judged. What lessons they have learned, what good resolutions they have formed, what ability to profit by their experience and what courage to carry out such good resolutions as they may have formed, will all be determined at this meeting to elect a new board of directors.

If they want a return of public confidence, if they want a return of honest and decent management, if they want their railroad to be an efficient factor in the development of New England, if they want to rescue their precarious investment from further danger, and if they have the intelligence to understand and the nerve to do what is necessary to these ends, they will retire from all places of influence on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad every man who was responsible, by commission or omission, for the practices which have brought the New Haven Railroad to its present low estate.

The New Haven Railroad has not yet given satisfactory security for its future good behavior. The surrender by its present directors to the national government in the anti-trust suit is not such a pledge, because it is well known that the surrender by those OLD directors came, not through repentance, but in duress and fear, and to save their own personal hides from the powerful threat of pending national legislation, STRONGLY AIDED BY SOME OF THE NEW BLOOD IN THE BOARD.

Rather does this surrender to the national government, as great a victory as it certainly is for the government, indicate that the old directors are still unrepentant. It indicates only that these old directors are still willing to control this railroad according to their notions of their own personal advantage.

Wise men do not try to teach old dogs new tricks. An attempt to reform the men who were responsible for the wrecking of the New Haven Railroad, and who have made their great fortunes by such methods, would be vain and silly. They may be meek enough now, for a very old trick is a well-learned part of their repertoire, expressed in the ancient lines, "The devil was sick—the devil a monk would be. The devil got well—the devil a monk was he." The voice might be the voice of Jacob for awhile, but the hand would always be the hand of Esau.

If the stockholders at the meeting in October elect any of these men, it will be decisive evidence in the public mind of the utter incompetence of the stockholders to control their own affairs or the deliberate approval of misconduct which has been ruinous to New England by stockholders, for whom the public has great sympathy and for whose sake the people of New England have been willing to condone much that was evil in the present New Haven situation.

If any of those old delinquents among the directors are returned to office, it will be a notice to the New England public that any departure from the disastrous policy which the New Haven has pursued, under the control of Wall Street, for the past decade, will be only under pressure, to be renewed again the very moment pressure is relaxed and the New England victim has regained sufficient strength to stand further racking. The people of New England will understand perfectly well by the re-election of any of these men that no change of heart has occurred, that no lessons have been learned, that no voluntary compliance with the law is intended, that efficient service is not contemplated and that no sound views of the obligations of a public service company are yet entertained.

If these men are left where they have done their bad work, we may expect in the end the same old aggressions and corruption and extortion and inefficiency and menace to life and limb. They may wait cautiously until the public's short memory enables the recent railroad history to be forgotten, and thus permit the vigilance of the law to be relaxed. They may allow the New England field, now exhausted by the extortion and waste of several hundred millions, to lie fallow until it has renewed its fertility and until its teeming harvests invite another lawless raid. They may grant peace this year and next year. But it will be an insecure peace, and that is what New England does not want.

"World's Greatest Editorial"

The following letter has been received by the editor of the Chicago American:

Dear Sir—The editorial, "Neutral Today, Our People Must Be Alert and Alive to Their Future Needs," by William Randolph Hearst, which appeared in the Evening American, was not only a keen, down-to-the-minute and timely effort, but from our point of view, as the owner and editor of a Republican daily newspaper in Indiana for nearly a quarter of a century, an editorial worthy to be classed among the greatest and most important newspaper articles that have appeared in any American paper in all our wonderful history of newspaperdom. The vital significance of the subject discussed, the keen logic, the penetrating reasoning and deep diplomatic thoughts expressed, together with the bold, truthful and patriotic way to getting right down to brass tacks, fills me with a lofty admiration for the great editor of many great newspapers.

We believe fully with Mr. Hearst that our country should have not only a great navy, but we would go very much further and urge that Uncle Sam build, by all means, the much largest navy in the world. Let us, as a nation, cut out the two hundred million dollar pork barrel and apply that little handful of change to building a few more warships.

We endorse most emphatically every word Mr. Hearst has to say about the Panama Canal.

We believe we should also have a great standing army. Not only do we want power on the sea, but also power on the land.

Of course, we do not want war now or ever, but the way to prevent it is to be always powerful enough as a nation on land and sea as to ever preclude the thought of war with our beloved country.

Every foot of our coast, all of our harbors and all of our border lines should be made impregnable without any unnecessary delay, and maintained in this condition for all time.

We strut around on Independence Day and many other occasions and boast of being the greatest nation on the globe. Why not start in right now to make it just that, and thus lift up Old Glory so high that every human eye in the wide, wide world may not only SEE but behold it with admiration, because it stands for so much.

The greater our navy and other defences, the farther removed will be the danger of war.

May the great creative God of the Universe hasten the day when we shall see in power at Washington a party that advocates and puts in force all these suggestions, and which will help us to become a still greater peace-loving nation, begotten by a self-wrought protection which all of the leaders and high-minded thinkers of our people have so long demanded.

The Star Spangled Banner is in the breeze. Let us keep it there forever. GERALD B. THOMAS.

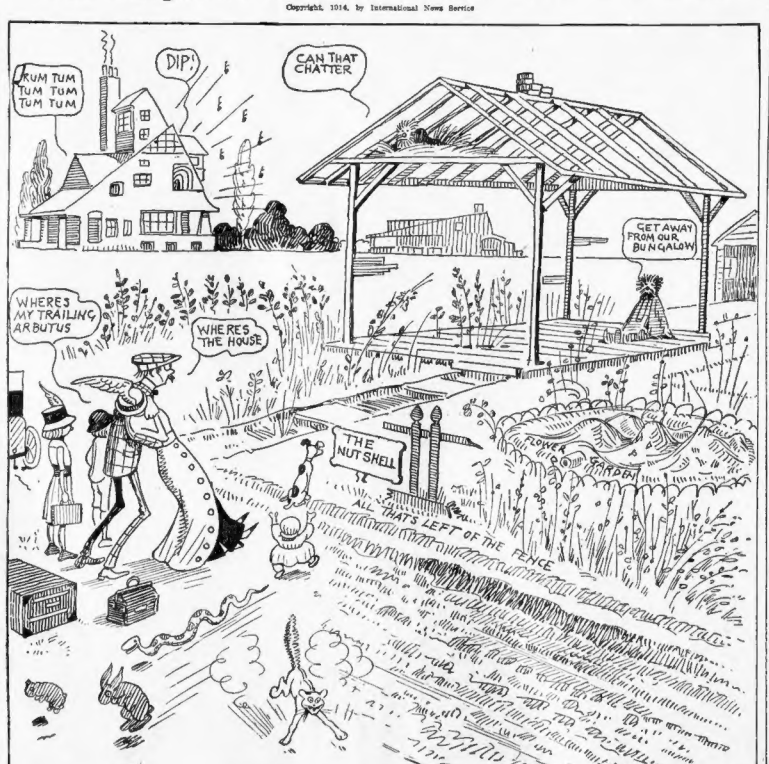
The Bungalows Get Back Home—By T. E. POWERS

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service



Bungalow's house, The Nutshell (don't make a joke about the name—the neighbors say that same thing often enough), looks a bit skimped, eh? Merely because Bill's fellow-commuters borrowed a few things, from frying pans to shingles, while the family was away. A sad spectacle for Mrs. B. And, by the way, note the escape of the pets the children brought back from the country.

When Woman Proposes

Nothing Is More Grotesque Than That Woman Should Be Forced to Take Merely a Passive Attitude in the Most Important Matter That Ever Concerns Her

By DOROTHY DIX

So far as woman's happiness and well-being are concerned, woman's right to vote is of small importance compared to woman's right to pop the question. The emancipation that will do more to free the feminine sex than anything else will be achieved when women break the sentimental bonds that bind them far more than do any political fetters.

When you think about it seriously, nothing is more grotesque than that a woman should be forced to take merely a passive attitude in the most important matter that ever concerns her. Her happiness, her physical and moral well-being, her prosperity, her very bread and butter, depend, in the great majority of cases, upon her getting the right sort of a husband, but custom does not allow her to raise a finger to secure to herself this desirable adjunct.

On the contrary, if she is a perfect lady she is supposed to sit around and suck her thumbs, and pray heaven to be kind to her, instead of hustling out after the best thing in sight.

Means More to Woman

Nobody denies that marriage means more to a woman than it does to a man, and that it is more important for her to be pleased in her husband than it is for him to be pleased with a wife, because the man who acquires a matrimonial lemon can get away from it, while the woman can't. If he makes an unfortunate marriage, he has his business or profession, and a thousand outside interests to distract his attention, while her horizon is bounded by her wedding ring, and she has nothing to turn her thoughts away from her misery.

There is no valid argument that can be advanced against giving woman the same right to select her life mate that a man has. The only objections to it are sentimental and conventional, and, curiously enough, these are put forward by men who are not wise enough to realize what a delightful and thrilling emotional experience they are missing in not being wooed by some charming lady.

In a recent letter I have received from a gentleman violently set against woman taking the initiative in love-making, he raises the sympathetic point of the crushing rebuff that it would be to a woman if she proposed to some eligible gentleman and was refused.

"She would not only risk this, but total loss as well, should she plump the question at the wrong time, and by giving premature notice of her intentions scare away some perfectly good but too wary provider," opines my correspondent.

Not at all. Far from it. Of course, there are risks in every venture, especially so in courtship, and there is no other gamble that is so much a matter of chance as the game of hearts. The woman who pops the question to a man will be in the same danger of having him say that he'll be a brother to her that a man is of having a woman volunteer to be his sister instead of his wife.

But the feminine heart is quite as much of a rubber ball, and as sure to rebound, as the masculine heart, and there will be no alarming lists of casualties as the result of unrequited love.

Nor will any woman die of chagrin because the man she asked to marry her said "no." Indeed, it will add enormously to the sum of feminine happiness for a woman who is in love with a man to be able to put the question squarely up to him, and have it definitely decided one way or the other, instead of hanging on, year after year, on the anxious bench trying by indirect methods to attract his attention, and hoping against hope that in some way she will be able to ensnare him up to the altar.

A great many men object to giving women the right to propose, because they seem to think that if women could pop the question men would be obliged to marry whether they wanted to or not, because no gentleman could summon up enough courage to say no to a lady. What nonsense. Every day of the week women apply to men for positions in their offices, or stores, or factories, or women try to borrow money of them, and men show no hesitation in turning down their requests. Yet when she is out of a job or needs money, the matter is of just about as much moment to a woman as getting a husband would be.

Neither does my correspondent's contention that it would scare away a possible husband for a woman to propose to him square with experience or observation. We are all vain, men and women alike. Nothing convinces us of the superior intelligence, justice and discriminating taste of a person as for him or her to single us out of a crowd for special admiration. Nothing draws us to an individual so irresistibly as his or her fancy for us, and we just naturally love those who love us.

Would Flatter Man

A man would have to be more than human if he was not pleased and flattered by the knowledge that a woman loved him and had picked him out from all the rest of mankind for her mate. Also it would direct many a man's attention to the jewel in his pathway that otherwise his wandering eyes might never discover.

Many men lack initiative. They do not even see the good opportunities in their own business until somebody else points them out to them. Nearly all men are stupid where women are concerned, but however dull women are in other respects, they are wise in love, and they know what they want in a husband, so it would be enormously to a man's advantage if a woman was free to go to him and explain to him why she thought that it would be for their mutual good for them to enter into a life partnership.

Furthermore, no timid brother need be alarmed, for he could always decline if he so desired.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

In the last census period the value of Maine farms increased nearly 63 per cent and now have an annual valuation of $300,000,000, with only an eighth of the available land cultivated?

The Baby That Was Mothered by Bears

Can you picture in your mind a helpless human infant being adopted and mothered and successfully "brought up" by a mother bear? Probably you can't, and are inclined to relegate all such tales to the company of ancient myths and legends, like that telling of Romulus and Remus, who were nurtured by the she-wolf and grew up to be the founders of the imperial city of Rome.

Nevertheless, evidence accumulates in favor of such actual happenings. Legends which have their birth in simple, pastoral times and retain their freshness all down the centuries never can be dismissed as pure inventions. Latterly, occasional tales about discoveries of wild men and women of the woods, with their suggestion of babies adopted and reared by animals, are usually short-lived because these are days of popular incredulity. Yet all such stories are part of an immemorial tradition that is not without its strong points of credibility.

And now comes the story of a real babe in the woods, a little lost girl who for seven years knew only wild animals. Read the remarkable story in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.
